Lindberghs Escape Disaster In Fog, Land In Japan

FLYING COUPLE FORCED TO SEA SHORT OF GOAL

Fliers Reach Nemuro on First Hop But White Blanket Prevents Landing and Drives Them Down 50 Miles Away.

PAIR EXPERIENCE MOST TRYING TRIP

Gasoline Near Exhaustion When Harassed Pair Descends Without Knowing Position.

NEMURO, Japan, Aug. 24 (Monday)—(AP)—The flying vacationists, Charles and Anne Lindbergh, landed here today at 7:51 a. m. (5:51 p. m. E. S. T., Sunday), after a flight of 50 miles from Kunashiri island.

With their landing in the bay here today the famous Americans completed a flight they started last Wednesday at Petropavlovsk, Siberia. Motor trouble and fog caused them to make several landings in the Kuriles, a chain of islands extending northwestward from Japan proper.

Frustrated again by the treacherous fogs which cover the Kuriles most of the year, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife spent last night on a lonely island, still 50 miles from Nemuro, their first scheduled descent in Japan.

Their descent late Sunday afternoon on Annoro or Tofutsu lake, on Kunashiri island, came after the colonel's most anxious flying experience since his marriage to the former Anne Morrow, and perhaps one of the most uneasy half hours in his aviation career.

Japan, too, had many uneasy moments, as the brief messages from Anne Lindbergh to the Ochiishi radio station told of the dense fog which sprung up in their pathway, their inability to find a hole through which to descend, the fact their gasoline supply was running short and finally the terse note "descended but don't know where we are."

They strted today from Shana, Iturup island, where they were forced down by fog Saturday, with the weather all in their favor. At the end of the first hour they encountered some mist but Lindbergh kept the plane headed for Nemuro. The weather cleared for a short period but suddenly heavy fog closed in on the fliers.

They apparently knew their position and hoping that Nemuro might be clear radioed at 4:23 p. m. (2:23 a. m., E. S. T.) that they would be over the city in 15 minutes, a little more than two hours after they left Shana.

The famous couple circled over the region of fogbound Nemuro time and again seeking an opening leading to the water. Residents, who had been on tiptoe for days in anticipation of their arrival, at times thought they heard the roar of the Lindbergh's monoplane.

At 4:45 p. m. (2:25 a. m., E. S. T.) the Ochiishi radio station here asked: "Are you still flying over Nemuro?"

Mrs. Lindbergh answered, "Descent impossible, clouds and dense fog, am doing other things, can't send radios."

Just what was engaging her attention at the time was not mentioned, although a short time before she had messaged she was having trouble with the radio antenna. Later she said they had only enough gasoline left for one hour's flight. The message was incomplete and it was believed the Lindberghs had then turned northward, realizing fog over Nemuro was thickening.

A long suspense followed during which their radio was not heard nor were there responses to calls of the Ochiishi station.

Then faintly came the message from Mrs. Lindbergh: "Descended, but don't know where we are."

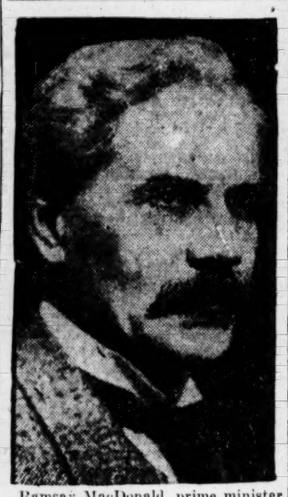

To Stay Overnight.

At 5:56 p. m. (3:56 a. m., E. S. T.) they radioed "Stay over night here, will communicate Ochiishi at 6 a. m. Monday (4 p. m. Sunday, E. S. T.)"

JOBLESS ILLS FACE MULTIPLE ATTACK

Federal, State and City Officials Planning Unemployment Aid.

BY ROBERT S. PICKENS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—With cold weather only a few months away, highly diversified and widespread activity has developed in the realm of unemployment relief.

President Hoover devoted the weekend to an intensive study of the problem with Walter S. Gifford, his new director of relief, at the chief executive's Rapidan camp.

Governor Roosevelt was at work on a message on the subject to be delivered to a special session of the New York legislature which will convene Tuesday.

In Detroit, Couzens offered $1,000,000 for the assistance of the city's jobless, with the provision that $9,000,000 be raised from other sources.

A conference on unemployment relief was scheduled to begin tomorrow at Memphis, Tenn., on a call by Governor Murray, of Oklahoma. The program to be submitted by Murray has not been announced, and there was somewhat of a misunderstanding existing between the governor and the Memphis Chamber of Commerce.

C. of C. Makes Progress.

The United States Chamber of Commerce committee appointed to study relief was putting the finishing touches on its findings and its plan preparatory to submitting them to President Hoover by September 1.

A committee for the National Electric Light Association was studying the possibilities of guaranteeing employment to public utility workers for a given time to remove the fear of dismissal.

Many governors and state superintendents of instruction were fostering a "back-to-school movement" for unemployed falling within the school age. President Hoover's emergency committee for employment was encouraging the idea.

At Tarrytown, N. Y., new construction work aggregating a half million dollars and largely financed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. was provided to give employment to local workmen.

ROOSEVELT SEEKS MEANS TO AID NEW YORK JOBLESS

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug 23.—(AP) Governor Roosevelt tonight concluded a week-end search of the state's coffers and income sources for money to meet the proposed emergency unemployment relief program he expects to present the New York legislature when it convenes in extra session this week.

The governor, turning his major attention for the last two days to the drafting of a message to the legislature recommending it enact some definite form of relief legislation, found himself confronted with the fact that the state had hardly more than $10,000,000 on hand which was not pledged to expenditure in some channel of government. He had before him the proposal that he recommend some new form of taxation to raise additional money, possibly a levy on tobacco or automobiles. The tobacco tax, at one cents for a package of cigarets and a corresponding tax for bulk tobacco and cigars, would raise, he was told, $15,000,000. An additional state tax of $5 on automobiles would bring another $10,000,000.

DETROIT TO "PASS HAT" FOR $9,000,000 AID FUND

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Caught between a mounting deficit and the prospect of caring for thousands of destitute families during the coming winter, the city of Detroit has decided to pass the hat for $9,000,000.

MURRAY PLANS PROGRAM FOR MEMPHIS MEETING

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Governor W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, of Oklahoma, was quartered in Memphis tonight where he laid plans for the alleviation of unemployment distress in the Mississippi valley at a conference tomorrow.

Bustling with energy, and bespeaking confidence in the outcome of his meeting, Oklahoma's colorful executive arrived shortly after noon to be greeted by representatives of the press who peppered him with questions.

MACDONALD, KING CONFER ON CRISIS IN BRITISH BUDGET

Labor Ministry Hangs in Balance as Cabinet Meets To Seek Solution of Financial Puzzle.

BY VICTOR EUBANK.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(Monday.)—(AP)—A national government in which all three of the principal British parties will be represented loomed as a possible outcome of the British political crisis after a hectic day of conferences, alarms and semi-sensations yesterday.

The MacDonald government has not resigned, but it was believed early this morning in the best-informed circles that its resignation is in contemplation.

Lobby correspondents in close touch with today's developments say the formation of a national government was discussed by leaders of the three parties after the cabinet meeting broke up at 10 Downing street late last night.

In these same circles it was declared the government's resignation probably would occur today. It was emphasized, however, that there was no official confirmation of this, or any other similar report at present.

A report that the government was about to resign followed a long cabinet meeting tonight, one of the first Sunday sessions of the ministry since the war.

Prime Minister MacDonald motored hurriedly to Buckingham palace shortly after 10 p. m., and conferred for 20 minutes with King George.

Leaves Cabinet Session.

The prime minister left a cabinet session to go to Buckingham palace, and the cabinet adjourned immediately after he returned.

Leaders of the conservative and liberal parties, including Stanley Baldwin, Neville Chamberlin and Sir Herbert Samuel, entered into a conference with the prime minister in Downing street after the adjournment of the cabinet. It was 10 minutes after midnight when Baldwin and Chamberlin left the prime minister's office.

Mr. Baldwin previously had met with the principal conservative leaders at the party's headquarters and discussed the situation in the expectation that the government would present its plan for balancing the budget later. The liberal party's "shadow cabinet" also was expected to meet and formulate its policy in order to be ready for consideration of the government's plan.

The British public was developing a distinctly perceptible case of "nerves" over the continued conferences in Downing street. The expected statement from the prime minister, outlining the new plan which is supposed to have been formulated by the cabinet in yesterday's conferences, was awaited with the keenest anxiety.

An official of the trades union congress said tonight: "The council has indicated its policy to the government and declared without any question or hesitation its position regarding the proposals suggested. If the government acts, it will be with the opinion of the council in mind. The general council, thus far, has not

Speakeasy 'Racket' Broken in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—With the arrest today of two men, police said they had broken up a racket which brought thousands of dollars from speakeasy proprietors who feared reprisal if they did not join a "protective association."

The men, arraigned and placed under $5,000 bail each, identified themselves as Arthur Lepori, 27, and Cosmo Candalone, 26.

They were arrested on the complaint of Louis R. Engel, of the Bronx, who said he was threatened with violence if he did not pay $25 a week. Engel said he knew of at least 25 other speakasy proprietors who had joined the organization, rather than "take a chance."

Thousands Resigned to Death As Pestilence Breaks Out Among China Flood Refugees

Many Survivors of Catastrophe Convinced That Ancient Gods Are Wreaking Vengeance; Make No Move to Prolong Life.

BY WILFRED LING.

HANKOW, China, Aug. 23.—(UP) Pestilence broke out in refuge camps of the flood-devastated Yangtze river valley today, intensifying the suffering of hundreds of thousands in the worst disaster of China's history.

Native survivors appeared to have been so completely demoralized that they were not even willing to save themselves from the flood, which has almost wiped out the thickly populated Wu-han area.

Many thousands have died of disease and drowning and a winter famine now seems unescapable.

When the United Press correspondent toured the Wu-han district in a sampan today, visiting Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, thousands of starving and exhausted persons were sitting motionless on roofs or in shallow water, calmly awaiting death.

I saw few signs of activity except on the part of the military rescue forces and they were unable to arouse the survivors to co-operate in relief work or even to save themselves in many cases. A majority of the 30,000,000 persons affected by the flood over an area of more than 500 miles along the river have been firmly convinced that the disaster was due to anger of the Yangtze dragon god, who took offense because the river dragon temple was demolished recently.

Frantic mothers, many clasping dead children to their thin breasts, had fought for scraps of food floating on the yellow water a few days ago. Today I saw them sitting motionless, hardly willing to answer questions, convinced that the dragon god of their ancestors intends to wipe out Hankow and that it is useless to resist.

Some of them refused to accept the aid of relief parties and abruptly rejected attempts to remove them to refugee camps in the hills. They were stoic, no longer afraid and, in many ways, calmly courageous in the face of disaster which they believed inescapable. In some places foul water that stretched as far as eye could see was only a few feet deep. Thousands of families sat in it up to their waists—along the Pingham railroad.

A hot sun beat down upon our sampan as it pushed through what formerly were streets. The stench was terrible and occasionally bodies which had been trapped under the water would be released by movement of demolished houses and bob to the surface. Survivors had almost no clothing. Their once crowded homes were in ruins. Water that was fit to drink could not be found except when relief groups passed with tanks carried in junks or sampans.

We passed along some streets where the water was 10 and 20 feet deep. Here I saw upper floors and roofs crowded with refugees, some of them foreigners whose former regard for class lines vanished when the flood threw all together in the shadow of disaster. Other refugees floated on rafts. Some had escaped the rising water in coffins which had been washed up from burial grounds. Few survivors expressed any hope of rescue. They seemed oblivious to the suffering around them, of the floating bodies and the hot sun.

Power plants have been inundated. The entire area is in darkness at night. It is after nightfall that the natives express their emotions, piercing the darkness with wails and shrieks.

But the fatalism of the natives has made futile the inadequate relief which crews of foreign gunboats have been able to extend. The survivors know the water has covered their fields for many miles up and down the river, that it will be perhaps a month before the flood subsides—although there were indications today of a slight recession—and that there will be no food this winter. Hence, they say, they are ready to die now, rather than starve in the cold of the coming months.

The conditions which I witnessed in the three sister cities, once one of the most prosperous commercial districts of China, exist in many other cities and villages up and down the river.

Only a few police or soldiers were patrolling in sampans, but officials

BRITAIN DENIES GANDHI CHARGES

Indian Government Declares Delhi Truce Has Not Been Violated.

SIMLA, India, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The government of India tonight made a sweeping denial to charges of Mahatma Gandhi and the Indian national congress that the government had violated the Delhi pact, under which the campaign of civil disobedience ended.

The government's answer to the charges was divided into two parts, the first answering specific charges and complaints, and the second replying to general charges.

The government's statement declared the total number of complaints, "the majority of which are local and comparatively trivial," is 79.

The general tenor of the replies of the local government to the first schedule of complaints, alleging specific breaches of the pact, is that many of the complaints do not come within the scope of the treaty, and that in many other cases the facts show no breach of the settlement.

In two or three cases, it was stated, ample reparation has been made, while in other cases the government has gone out of its way to take liberal administrative action outside of the scope of the settlement.

The government's general conclusion, it was declared, is to establish that the utmost has been done to observe the settlement honorably and that instances to the contrary are so few, and of such trivial character, as

OFFICIALS FEAR WATER HIKE VOTE

Referendum Almost Certain To Mean Plan's Defeat, Millican Says.

Approval of the legislature of a proposed referendum on an increase of 25 per cent in water rates to relieve Atlanta's financial distress will help the situation little because the referendum is almost certain to be voted down, Alderman G. Everett Millican said Sunday.

"Members of council have grave doubts about the referendum," Millican said. "I doubt if it will be given a majority at the special election."

Under the proposal, as approved by the legislature, the council must fix the election date within the next 60 days.

"As far as I can see the legislature did nothing to help our situation," Millican said. "The only bill passed besides the water bill was one providing pension for firemen and that will cost the city $25,000 a year. So instead of being helped the city government was hurt."

Millican said he would not recede from his previous efforts to reduce the cost of city government.

"What we need more than increased revenue is decreased expenses," he said. "The heads of the city government must be made to realize that our condition is acute and expenses must be reduced."

Alderman Millican was chairman of a special investigating committee which recently recommended wholesale reductions in salaries, elimination of useless employes and a general curtailment in municipal government operations. The committee's recommendations were referred to the council's finance committee where they still are awaiting action.

Important Legislation Passed During Hectic 60-Day Session

The principal legislation enacted at the 1931 session of the Georgia general assembly follows:

General appropriations carrying $10,996,909.14 for 1932 and $10,728,000 for 1933.

Departmental reorganization, cutting state boards, bureaus, commissions and departments from 102 to 20.

Congressional redistricting, reducing Georgia's districts under the 1930 census.

Creation of a Stone Mountain memorial commission.

Western & Atlantic railroad rental discount, raising a total of $3,620,000 to pay state debts.

Prohibition of county participation in state road building.

Repayment to the counties of $25,000,000 in money advanced for state road work

A proposal to the voters for inauguration of the governor in January.

Creation of the 52d senatorial district in south Georgia.

Provision for reciprocal auto tag agreements with adjoining states.

Abolition of county game wardens and creation of a state game warden.

Reapportionment of the house of representatives.

Regulation of the practice of law.

Elimination of a tax deed land racket.

Perfection of the motor bus law.

Transferal of auto license tag law enforcement from highway department inspectors to the county sheriffs.

THREE MAJOR BILLS AWAIT SIGNATURE OF GOV. RUSSELL

Final Approval of Finance Measure Completes Wild Night; State-at-Large Race Averted.

BY BEN COOPER.

Finishing touches on legislation enacted at the 1931 session of the Georgia general assembly, which adjourned sine die just as the sun rose Sunday morning after passing the 1932-1933 appropriations bill within the income of the state and reorganizing the government and redistricting the state, will begin this morning as officers of the two houses prepare to speed the legislation to the governor for his signature.

The climax of a wild night under the capitol dome came at 6 o'clock Sunday morning when, after a brief effort by irreconcilables to throw the appropriations bill into the hands of a fourth conference committee, the senate adopted the money bill and the last major measure of the session was disposed of.

Bitterly fought over by a farm bloc in the house and an anti-Talmadge bloc in the senate, the appropriations bill was tossed about from one conference to another until a compromise of $300,000 a year for the agricultural department was accepted by both bodies.

Redistricting Plan Accepted.

Georgia was saved from a state-at-large congressional race early Sunday morning when both houses accepted a conference committee report on redistricting the state under the 1930 census, and one of the principal governmental reforms sponsored by Governor Russell—the departmental reorganization bill—was agreed upon by the assembly. Another administration measure, involving discount of the Western & Atlantic railroad rentals to pay back debts of the state, went through with flying colors. This act will raise some $3,600,000 by a five-year discount of the rentals and sale of three additional years' rentals to the highway department, retiring more than half of the unpaid appropriations.

Stormy petrels of the 1931 session were Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, and proponents of diversion of state highway funds. Efforts to "get" Talmadge came to naught as the house failed to move for impeachment after an investigation launched by the senate, but the house adopted a committee report recommending that Talmadge be sued to recover state money alleged to have been illegally used. The senate later passed a similar resolution.

Atlanta and Fulton county legislation failed of passage for the most part when the local delegation became involved in a fight over McRae-Eckford measures designed to "reform" administration and county affairs . . . a fight in which the Fulton county grand jury took a prominent part.

Civil Service Battle.

One of the headlights of the Atlanta legislative battle was a conflict between council and city employes over a civil service commission bill, a riot being narrowly averted when irate employes visited the capitol in an effort to get at Senator E. L. Reagan, of the 35th, whose opposition in the senate blocked the bill.

Efforts to increase the gasoline tax to seven cents a gallon, an administration proposal, were defeated in the house in favor of the railroad rental discount move. Friends of the governor said that he had not solicited votes for the seven-cent gas tax in any way, but merely told a delegation visiting his office that the increase of one cent a gallon would be one way to raise money for the state debts.

The general assembly adjourned

Launching of Navy's New Dirigible Postponed To Permit Reinforcing

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Found in tests to have "satisfactory general airworthiness," the new navy dirigible Akron tonight nestled within its dock, with its fledgling flight postponed beyond the expected date late this week in order that it can undergo "localized strengthening" of its structure.

Decision to defer the launching of the 785-foot Zeppelin, largest in the world, was arrived at by navy department and Goodyear-Zeppelin officials as thousands of persons were preparing to make an early week visit to watch ground crews practice by walking it a third of the way out, both backward and forward.

No definite word of the new walking out and initial flight dates was forthcoming. The walking act had been expected any time from Monday to Wednesday with the first test flight looked for as early as mid-week. It was indicated that the definite time necessary to make the desired changes was the only matter affecting the launching date.

To the usual Sunday crowd of thousands that gathered at the dock in which the Akron floats, the ship appeared today to be completed and even to experts about all she was seen to need was that additional "localized structural strength." It will be several weeks, however, before she has completed the 75 hours in the air which navy officials require before pronouncing her acceptable.

The Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation said the proposed changes are not serious and do not relate to vital construction of the ship. The changes were not detailed, the announcement merely stating that "tests have disclosed opportunities for building greater localized strength into the ship and certain points and decision was made to incorporate some modifications to this end."

Frustrated by Fog

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who again Sunday was frustrated by a heavy fog which forced him and his wife to descend 50 miles from their goal, Nemuro, Japan. They later completed their flight, however.

FURTHER CUT SEEN IN WHEAT SURPLUS

Progress Made in Grain Problem as Board Studies Plans on Cotton.

BY MELBOURNE CHRISTERSON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Another big scoop of surplus wheat may be removed from the farm board's bin before the week closes.

Several sales and trades are in prospect. One sale of at least 15,000,000 bushels, and possibly much more, probably will be negotiated successfully with China for use in feeding that country's starving flood victims.

A new compromise for dealing with the southern cotton farmers' overproduction problem also is in prospect and may materialize this week. Board members are giving serious study to hundreds of plans which followed rejection of its own suggestion of plowing under every third row as a means of reducing supplies and bolstering prices.

Members of congress, grain and cotton merchants, farmers and disinterested citizens have offered their ideas on disposing of the board's more than 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and 1,300,000 bales of cotton and giving assistance to American growers with money taken from the board's $500,000,000 revolving fund. These ideas, which began arriving two years ago, now number about 100,000.

One Bears Fruit.

One of these ideas bore fruit last week when 25,000,000 bushels of wheat were bartered to Brazil for 1,050,000 bags of coffee. Chairman Stone said this exchange was only one of many which is being given serious consideration.

If the Chinese sale for 15,000,000 is consummated, the board will have parcelled out approximately 75,000,000 bushels from its store since last spring. In doing so it has incurred losses of several millions of dollars by selling at the current market price of around 50 cents a bushel wheat which was bought at stabilized prices of 72 cents and higher.

Other large stocks may be disposed of next winter through direct sale at low cost or gifts by congressional authority of wheat to community chests for distribution in flour or bread form among poor and unemployed in

Two Brothers Drown In Miami Boat Race

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Sam and Donald Oliver, brothers, were drowned in Biscayne bay today during boys' boat races. Witnesses and persons who aided in a search said the bodies of the boys were found entangled in the anchor rope of the boat in which they were sailing in a race.

The boys' absence was not noted until they failed to bring their boat to shore after the race. Investigation by their father, A. L. Oliver, and friends, resulted in finding their overturned craft. The search lasted one and one-half hours.

Participants in the race said none of them saw the boat overturn.

MRS. W. C. THIELE IS KILLED IN BED ON PRYOR STREET

Girl and Boy, Roused By Pistol Shots, Find Mother Dead and Stepfather Unconscious; Little Hope Held for Man.

MURDER, SUICIDE POLICE DECLARE

Inquest Into Early Morning Mystery Set for This Afternoon; Victims Are From South Carolina.

Mrs. W. C. Thiele was found dead and her husband, W. C. Thiele, an insurance salesman, was found probably fatally wounded early Monday morning in their apartment at 568 South Pryor street. Police said their investigation indicated that Thiele had shot the woman and then himself. He is reported dying at Grady hospital.

Agnes and Alves Estes, 12 and 9, respectively, the children of Mrs. Thiele, heard two shots shortly after 1 o'clock and ran into an adjoining bedroom, where they found their mother dead and their stepfather dying. They summoned Mrs. Leon Boyce, proprietress of the apartment house. She summoned the police.

The children said that the door between the two rooms was latched from the inside of the room in which the man and woman were in bed and that they had to break down the thin door to gain entrance. They said they did not hear any disturbance in the room before the shooting.

The man and woman are said to have been married here only a few weeks ago. Friends and neighbors at the South Pryor street address could give no reason for the shooting.

Thiele has been a salesman for the Life and Casualty Insurance Company with offices in the Hurt building. Norman A. Hunter, district manager of the company, said that Thiele came to his offices from Charleston, S. C., about two months ago. He said Thiele's first wife obtained a divorce from the salesman.

The body of Mrs. Thiele was taken to the undertaking parlors of J. Austin Dillon, where an inquest is scheduled for this afternoon.

THREE GANGSTERS SHOT IN NEW YORK

Gotham Racketeers Reproduce Chicago's Valentine Day Massacre.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—(AP)—In a fashion reminiscent of the St. Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago three men were lined up against a slaughter house wall in Brooklyn tonight, police said, and sprayed with bullets.

One man was killed outright and the other two were critically wounded.

The police said they believed machine guns were employed by the gangland executioners.

The dead man is Anthony Ferrari, 25, who police said was paroled from Sing Sing prison last April after serving a partial term for robbery.

The others, dying in St. Catherine's hospital are Angelo Curianni, 23, and Murray Leonardi, 21. Each had three bullets in his body.

John Shumaker, a nightwatchman in the slaughter house, told police a carload of gunmen drove up to the slaughter house, pushed the three victims out of the car, and lined them up against the wall.

Terrified, Shumaker said he watched the gunmen hold the victims in position for a few moments, dart back into the machine and open fire.

"The three men slumped down," Shumaker told police. "It all happened so quickly, it was over before I knew what it was all about."

From the Rapidan camp of the president, federal aid was indicated for the extermination of the type of hoodlums whose seizure of a pay roll Friday precipitated one of the fiercest running pistol fights New York ever has seen.

Among the six persons killed in the chase was the four-year-old daughter of a city fireman. The fireman today appeared in danger of losing his sight from wounds he himself suffered in the shooting. The condition of most of nearly a dozen others who were shot in the pursuit was encouraging.

The widow of the taxicab driver who piloted the two robbers on their fatal flight through miles of congested upper Manhattan was agonized because she cannot bury her husband in consecrated ground until his name is cleared; the father of one of the dead robbers would not claim his body because the youth had "disgraced the whole family."

The outbreak has caused police officials, spurred by the loss of the lives of two patrolmen, to press their drive against outlaws.

An appropriation of $100,000 will be sought with which to equip cruising squad cars with radio sets, so they may be directed to the scene of an

CONGRESS PRIMARY TO BE HELD TUESDAY

First District Selects Successor to Edwards; Three Candidates.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The first congressional district, composed of 13 counties, goes to the polls Tuesday to elect a successor to the late Charles G. Edwards in the lower branch of the national assembly.

There are three candidates, J. W. Overstreet, former congressman, Sylvania; Homer C. Parker, Statesboro, former adjutant general of Georgia; and Albert L. Cobb, lawyer, of Savannah.

Candidate Overstreet predicts his election by a vote of 28 out of a total of 36 county unit votes; Candidate Parker claims a favorable vote for him of 26 out of 36 votes; while Candidate Cobb makes no definite prediction in figures, but says he is confident of election.

Twenty county unit votes are necessary to election.

In the event of a tie of 18 votes between any two candidates, or of 12 for each of the three candidates, the popular vote in the district will decide the election.

The general election called by the governor will be September 10. Nomination in the democratic primary is equivalent to election.

Chatham county is faced with another election which will have to be held to fill the vacancy in the office of sheriff, caused by the death of Colonel M. W. Dixon, last Friday. An appointment for the interim will be made Monday by county commissioners, it is thought, and a special election will be called by them later with 20 days' notice to the electorate.

For the congressional primary there are 12,576 votes qualified in Chatham county.

WAYCROSS-BRUNSWICK ROAD OPENS SATURDAY

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Aug. 23.—The board of trade committee which has in charge the celebration to be held on St. Simons next Saturday in connection with the formal opening of the Waycross-Brunswick highway, state route 50, announced today that practically all details had been completed. The program, as tentatively arranged and announced, has not been changed, except in a few minor instances.

Judging from the number of acceptances received many prominent Georgians will be present, including Governor Richard B. Russell, Senator Walter F. George, Chairman Barnett and the other members of the state highway board, Adjutant General Cox and a number of others, while representatives from the various counties through which the road passes will also be present, together with a large number of others.

The exercises will be held in the large oak grove at Neptune park, on St. Simons island, beginning at 2 o'clock. A special speakers' stand will be erected and there will be seats to accommodate most of the crowd. Several prominent speakers are on the program. The principal address will be delivered by Governor Russell.

Following the exercises there will be a special water sports program at the Sea Island casino. At night there will be a stag banquet in honor of Governor Russell and other distinguished guests. The banquet will be given in the main dining room of the Cloister hotel.

Following the banquet there will be a governor's ball at the Sea Island casino, which is expected to be a large and brilliant affair. Many out-of-town persons will attend, together with the large colony of summer visitors now on the island and local people.

Trucks Detained.

SYLVESTER, Ga., Aug. 23.—Two trucks from Greenville, S. C., which were engaged to haul cotton from Sylvester to Greenville were seized here Saturday morning by Sheriff Sumner and Chief Deputy Hudson. The trucks were held all day, being released late in the afternoon when they secured the proper license, paid the costs, etc.

State Deaths And Funerals

JOHN P. LAND.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 23.—Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. P. Dell, of the First Methodist church, yesterday afternoon at Sunset Hill cemetery for John P. Land, 70, whose death occurred in Jacksonville Friday. Mr. Land, until a few years ago, had made his home in Lowndes county and Valdosta. He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. R. Nelson Smith and Miss Mildred Land, of Jacksonville, and one son, Wilbur Land, who lives in South America.

MRS. WILLIAM SARRETT.

OCHLOCKNEE, Ga., Aug. 23.—Funeral services were held Saturday at the cemetery of Bold Spring church, near here, for Mrs. William Sarrett, widow of the late William Sarrett. She died Friday at the home of her son, Rev. J. N. Sarrett, near Milledgeville. The services were conducted by Rev. W. D. Raburn, pastor of the Methodist church at Pavo. Mr. and Mrs. Sarrett lived in this county a number of years prior to the death of Mr. Sarrett, and their son, Rev. J. N. Sarrett, was for several years pastor of the Methodist church in Metcalfe.

GEORGE BROOKS.

MONTEZUMA, Ga., Aug. 23.—Funeral services were conducted from the residence Sunday morning for George Brooks, 63, well-known citizen of Macon county, whose death occurred Saturday morning at his home near Ideal. Mr. Brooks served for many years on the board of county commissioners. He was a lifelong member of the Methodist church and served the church as a steward until his health failed. He was well known as a naturalist and was considered an authority on the wild life of this section.

He is survived by his widow, who was a daughter of the late Rev. W. E. Greene; four sons, T. S., W. T., R. C. and H. S. Brooks, and two daughters, Miss Allie Belle Brooks, of Ideal, and Mrs. V. M. Culpepper, of Byron. The services were conducted by Rev. W. F. Johnson, of Byron, and Rev. J. E. Summers, of Ogiethorpe.

L. F. HOWELL.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 23.—L. F. Howell, one of the pioneer residents of Valdosta, died tonight at his home here after an illness of several months.

Mr. Howell was about 67 years of age and a member of one of the oldest and best-known families in this city. He is survived by his widow and four sons, Davis Howell, L. F. Howell, Walter Howell and Thomas Howell, and one brother, Charles K. Howell, all of Valdosta. The funeral arrangements are in charge of John Sineath and will be announced Tuesday.

Legion Post Honors Auxiliary With 'Cue

ASHBURN, Ga., Aug. 23.—Dewey Hulsey Post No. 98, American Legion, entertained Thursday evening with a chicken barbecue honoring the ladies of the auxiliary unit who won honors at the recent state legion convention in LaGrange, Ga. Charles R. Crisp, of Americus, congressman of the third district, addressed the gathering. While here he was the guest of Sheriff and Mrs. Alex Story.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR CHATHAM SHERIFF

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 23.—The funeral of Merritt W. Dixon, sheriff of Chatham county, who died on Friday night after a long illness took place this afternoon from the home of his nephew, Merritt W. Dixon Jr., on East Forty-sixth street, with services later at the Independent Presbyterian church. C. C. McNeill, supply pastor of the Independent church, conducted the services both at the church and cemetery.

MERRITT W. DIXON.

The honorary pallbearers included George W. Tiedeman, Thomas M. Hoynes, mayor of Savannah; Judge Peter W. Meldrim, Judge Gordon Saussy, General W. L. Grayson, John E. Foy, Dan R. Woods, A. Gordon Cassells, T. A. Bryson, M. D. Papy, T. R. Pritchard, H. W. Cowan and Walter Murphy. The active pallbearers were L. K. Meldrim, C. P. Purdy, W. J. Ryan, A. J. Mordecai, J. L. Wilder, Jacob Birnbaum and W. L. Roberts. The active pallbearers were all deputies in the office of the sheriff.

Colonel Dixon was sheriff of Chatham county since August 11, 1913. He had been a faithful officer and had given evidence on more than one occasion of great courage and bravery. He was very popular and although opposed at times by men of marked political strength had little trouble in holding the office. In June, 1923, Sheriff Dixon gave evidence of marked bravery in facing a mob which attempted to storm the jail at Savannah and remove a prisoner, Walter Lee, a negro, was the man the mob was after. The sheriff took his stand at the doorway of the jail and said he would kill the first man who tried to pass him.

Thomasville Girl To Teach in Shanghai

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 23. Miss Elizabeth Britton, Thomasville girl, daughter of Mrs. Rosa B. Britton, has been signed to teach physical culture in the American school, of Shanghai, and sailed Saturday from Seattle, Wash., for China. Miss Britton for several years has been physical culture instructor in the Alabama State College for Women, and taught physical culture during the present summer at Northwestern University, Ada, Ohio.

TURNER COUNTY FORMS CLUB FOR ROOSEVELT

ASHBURN, Ga., Aug. 23.—Turner county recently organized a Roosevelt-for-President Club with the following officers:

Judge R. L. Tipton, president; W. A. Murray, vice president; Mrs. Nora Lawrence Smith, secretary; Miss Mamie Vinson, treasurer.

At a later date chairmen will be named in all militia districts.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the time for the election of a president of the United States is rapidly approaching, and

Whereas, the present administration has proven to be a most colossal failure—blunders in its name being responsible for the chaotic economic condition now obtaining throughout the land,

Be It Resolved, that the Turner County Roosevelt Club, believing that only through a return to the great principles of a democracy can order and prosperity be restored, hereby rededicates itself, and each member thereof, to the service of the party, and

Be It Further Resolved, that we believe that in the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York, peerless democrat and statesman and part-time Georgia citizen by adoption, the party has one, who if made the standard bearer during the approaching campaign will safely lead the party to victory, and

That the club declares itself as favoring the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt as the democratic candidate for president.

Further, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to Governor Roosevelt, and one to the press.

LEBRIX AND DORET TEST NEW AIRPLANE

TOULOUSE, France, Aug. 23.—(AP) Joseph Lebrix and Marcel Doret, French aviators who were forced down in Siberia on their attempted non-stop flight from Paris to Tokyo, have tested a new plane, the Hyphen II, and plan to fly it tomorrow to Thun, Switzerland.

After showing it to Swiss aviation authorities, they intended going to Lebourget for further tests.

They said they may take off on another attempt to fly from Paris to Tokyo at the end of this week.

SHERIFF OF TWIGGS TO FACE TRIAL TODAY

Three Charges of Alleged Misconduct To Be Aired at Jeffersonville.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 23.—(AP) — Impeachment proceedings against Sheriff Samuel G. Kitchens on three charges of misconduct, will be tried in open court here tomorrow.

Sheriff Kitchens has branded the charges—a shortage of funds, making a false arrest, and unprovoked shooting of a negro in the back—all "politics," and has announced himself prepared to defend his position in every charge. The allegations were made by G. Frank Cannon, who said Sheriff Kitchens threatened his life three months ago. Cannon is a former member of the board of roads and revenue.

Judge Earl Camp, of Dublin, will open court at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Prosecuting attorneys are Solicitor Fred Kea, Dublin; former Solicitor E. L. Stephens, Dublin; and H. F. Griffin Jr., Jeffersonville attorney. The defense will be conducted by Loyd D. Moore, of Macon.

Shortage of funds by Sheriff Kitchens runs between $275 and $400, according to the allegations. He denies this and maintains his position in the other charges is justifiable.

MILITARY FUNERAL HELD IN SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Sergeant Major William B. Tarver of headquarters battery, Fifty-fifth Field Artillery brigade, national guard, was buried this afternoon in Bonaventure cemetery with military honors, Battery E (Irish Greens) forming an escort at the funeral.

Sergeant Major Tarver was killed Friday night near Columbia, S. C., by being thrown out of an automobile in which he was riding, and which ran off a highway while going down a hill, unable to stop its speed because of defective brakes. He died a short time later in a hospital in Columbia. He was in camp at Camp Jackson and was to have returned to Savannah today with his command.

COTTON CORPORATION URGED BY HARRISON

Mississippi Senator Suggests Plan for Relief To Farm Board.

GULFPORT, Miss., Aug. 23.—(UP)—Urging relief for the "cotton farmers and not just the brokers," Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, today forwarded to the federal farm board his plan to resuscitate the cotton market.

The plan was drafted by Senator Harrison in collaboration with W. L. Pryor, former chief government cotton statistician.

"I appreciate that your board is considering various proposals to work out some sane and rational plan," his message said. "In the meantime, Mr. Pryor and myself suggest the following:

"That your board, or some other agency of the federal government set up a corporation to handle at least 10,000,000 bales of the present cotton crop and take it off the market upon certain terms, as for instance: Let every farmer take stock in the corporation at $5 a bale for each bale he turns over to the corporation warehouse. If 10,000,000 bales are turned over this would give the corporation a capital stock of $50,000,000. Under the law and according to present discounting policy this would allow a credit to the corporation of six times that amount, or $300,000,000.

"Lend to the farmer $25 in cash for each bale on delivery and give a share of stock for each bale, on written pledge or guarantee from farmer that he will reduce his acreage 50 per cent next year or for the next two years, if his cotton remains unsold."

SEN. SMITH TO CONFER WITH MARKETING LEADERS

LYNCHBURG, S. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, announced here tonight he would confer Wednesday in Columbia with national cotton marketing leaders on plans for putting into effect his proposal for relieving the cotton price crisis.

Senator Smith said he was in communication with officers of the American Cotton Co-operative Association and the Cotton Stabilization Corporation, created under the provisions of the federal farm act, and expected to go over his plan with them at the Columbia conference.

Under his plan, the farm board would take at least 8,000,000 bales of this year's crop off the market, obtaining from all farmers whose cotton it handled signed contracts not to plant cotton in 1932.

To Run for Sheriff

Cal Cates, for 14 years one of the best-known members of the county police force, who has officially announced that he will offer as a candidate for the post of Fulton county sheriff. The primary will be held next March, and already two others have announced themselves as candidates, while Sheriff James L. Lowry, incumbent, has indicated that he will run for re-election. Cates is a native of Fulton county and is well known over the entire territory.

BARTON AGAIN FLAYS GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Opposition to Governor Roosevelt, of New York, as a democratic presidential candidate because of his stand against the prohibition amendment was voiced in a public statement issued here today by the Rev. Arthur J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., the chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

TWO BROTHERS KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Three Others Die in Series of Accidents Over Country.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP) Two brothers were killed today when their airplane crashed from an altitude of 60 feet.

The dead are Kenneth A. and Philip Solomon, 24 and 20 years old, respectively, of Auburn, Ill., near here.

Witnesses said Kenneth was piloting and tried to make a vertical turn. The plane had insufficient speed, they said, and nose-dived to the ground.

PILOT, STUDENT FLYER KILLED WHEN PLANE FALLS

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Jacob Zays, who received a pilot's license two weeks ago, and his companion, Joe Petrask, 19, a student flyer, were killed when their plane fell 300 feet at Snowden, near here, tonight. Both were of Pittsburgh.

SELFRIDGE FIELD FLIERS MEETS DEATH IN CRASH

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Lieutenant Robert Moore, 37, Selfridge field flyer, assigned to national guard instruction, was killed today when his plane crashed near Wayne county airport while flying in formation. Private Joseph Walkos parachuted to safety, but Moore atetmpted to bring down the plane.

Moore saw overseas service during the World War, after training at Kelly field, San Antonio, Texas, and had been in the army air service since. He had been at Selfridge field for three years.

The fatal crash was caused when an elevator snapped at an altitude of 2,500 feet. Walkos jumped from 400 feet. Moore is believed to have been killed instantly when the plane crashed in a cornfield. His body was burned when the wreckage caught fire.

ALABAMANS INJURED AS PLANE OVERTURNS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Lee Hooper, of Birmingham, and Jane Heron, five, of Mobile, Ala., were slightly injured here today when an airplane in which they were riding overturned after making a forced landing in a cornfield. Norman Wise, pilot of the ship was unhurt.

19-YEAR-OLD MOTHER ARRESTED IN HOLDUP

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A 19-year-old mother was arrested today on a charge of having participated in the holdup of a lunch counter at the point of a pistol.

She was Mrs. Millie Arone, mother of a 2 1-2-year-old girl also named Millie.

Police were looking for a male accomplice in the holdup, which netted $165.

Community Theater of Atlanta To Offer 5 Plays in First Season

The Community Theater of Atlanta, which begins active work of play production early in October, Saturday announced through its director, Janet Millis Shepherd, the plays for the coming season as decided upon by the play-reading committee, of which Miss Natalie Hammond is chairman. Mrs. Shepherd said the plays have been selected with a view to variety of style and type and with the idea of having each one as different as possible but of such a character as to appeal to all tastes.

Actors for the first play will be given an initial try-out on August 31 and September 1, at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce building, it was announced. Any Atlantan is eligible for the try-out. It has been demonstrated in the past that there is much real talent in the city, Mrs. Shepherd pointed out.

The Community Theater is receiving the indorsement of a group of prominent Atlantans who are charter members of the organization and from this group officers and a permanent board of directors will be chosen.

Season tickets will be sold at a reduced rate, it was stated, and students also will be given special rates.

The list of plays to be given follows:

October 12-13—"Ariadne," by A. A. Milne. A modern comedy in three acts depicting life of the English upper class.

December 7-8 — "Coquette," by George Abbott and A. P. Bridger. Of special interest to Atlantans because it is an engrossing story of life in a small southern city as lived by persons of refinement and breeding.

January 18-19—John Drinkwater's "Bird in Hand," a comedy of English country life. The play's author was the originator of the community theater idea in his native England, 20 years ago.

February 29-March 1—"Granite," by the woman dramatist, Clarence Dane. A highly dramatic production in four acts.

April 12-13—"Holiday," by Phillip Barry. A witty, dramatic love story with a happy ending, depicting modern American life.

BACKS TO WALL, THREE MEN SHOT

outbreak immediately. It was half an hour before any of the cruising shotgun squad joined Friday's chase.

Meanwhile a mass meeting in Central park was arranged for tomorrow in protest against gang violence. The meeting, sponsored by the New York American, will be presided over by Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state.

As ballastics experts sought to determine whether any of the bystanders were struck by police bullets, a detective came forward with a story tending to exonerate Herbert Haase, slain chauffeur of the robber car, from any part of the crime. At variance with other accounts, this detective said Hasse took no part in the shooting.

During the last 19 months a total of four innocent bystanders have been killed and 39 wounded by stray bullets, Police Commissioner Mulrooney revealed today. All four killed were children.

From the bedside of 13-year-old James Giordan, a wounded bystander, came word that he has only a slight chance of living because a bullet is pressing close to his heart.

GANGSTER OUTBREAKS WORRY PRESIDENT

LURAY, Va., Aug. 23.—(AP)—President Hoover once more may give active attention to crime and possible remedies.

It was said at his Rapidan camp tonight that the gangster outbreak in New York last week considerably disturbed the executive. Those close to him, however, were non-committal as to what steps he might take.

At the Rapidan camp tonight, it was explained that detectives are continuing to build up cases in New York and San Francisco similar to that against Capone in Chicago. Tax evasions continue to be looked upon as the best method by which the federal government can trap criminals.

FURTHER CUT SEEN IN WHEAT SURPLUS

cities. Board members have given the proposal considerable thought.

The announcement of the First National Bank of Atlanta, that loans of 80 per cent of the market price will be made to southeastern farmers received favorable attention here. These loans will run from four to six months and bear interest of 5 per cent. The Atlanta Citizens & Southern National bank will give virtually the same privileges in Georgia.

These loans will supplement advances to members of co-operatives of one cent less per pound than prevailing prices at delivery points. The farm board will participate in these advances which will enable thousands of farmers to withhold their crops from marketing channels.

BUSINESS EDITOR OFFERS ANOTHER PLAN ON COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Gage P. Wright, editor of the Business Economic Digest, today made public a letter to James C. Stone, chairman of the farm board, suggesting the board provide loans to enable any planter to buy cotton in any amount equal to his average annual production, the loan to be contingent upon the planter's agreement to plant no cotton next year.

"Cotton is selling today at prices below actual cost of production," Wright wrote. "Why, therefore, would it not be good plain common sense for a cotton planter to purchase in the open market at prevailing prices a volume of cotton equivalent to the amount he may have been planning to grow next year? In other words, why not purchase his crop instead of growing it, if he can do so at less cost? . . .

"Knowledge among buyers that the present crop, together with the carry-over now on hand, would constitute their only available supply of domestic cotton for two years, instead of one, would automatically bring about price readjustment."

OWNERS WANT WHEAT AND COFFEE SHIPPED IN U. S. BOATS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—An effort to have the coffee and wheat involved in the farm board's trade with Brazil shipped in American vessels probably will result from a meeting tomorrow in New York of the American Steamship Owners' Association.

No such provision is made in the present contract and the shipping likely will be done in Brazilian and other foreign ships. The board authorized the grain stabilization corporation to exchange 25,000,000 bushels of wheat for 1,050,000 bags of coffee. Shipping charges, which will be paid by Brazil, would amount to more than $1,000,000.

Edwin H. Duff, attorney for the Steamship Owners' Association, which represents the owners of 90 per cent of commercial ships flying the American flag, said he expected the association to exert every reasonable and proper effort to have the contract reopened. American shipping interests have suffered heavily because of the depression.

ROOSEVELT-I. M. M. CO. PROTEST CHAPMAN BID

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Roosevelt - International Mercantile Marine Corporation today made public a letter to the shipping board protesting "on both moral and legal grounds" the latest proposal made by P. W. Chapman and associates, for acquisition of the United States lines.

The letter states that Chapman, New York and Chicago shipping man and his associates, R. Stanley Dollar and K. D. Dawson, have not complied with the bidding requirements of the shipping board and that their bid was made after noon, August 13, the time limit set by the board.

The Roosevelt-I. M. M. Company asks an opportunity to "bid on the new terms" if the board "is going to change its terms and conditions of sale, or consider any bids based on any terms and conditions other than those laid down by the board in its previous call for bids."

NEW MEMBERS NAMED IN HUNGARIAN CABINET

BUDAPEST, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The new Hungarian cabinet, replacing that of Count Stefan Bethlen, who resigned recently, was officially announced today, with Count Julius Karolyi as premier and provisional minister of finance.

Foreign Minister Walko will collaborate with the premier in financial matters.

The remainder of the cabinet includes:

Bela Kenes, commerce; Julius De Gombos, home defense; Tibor De Zsitvay, justice; Dr. Alexander Ernszt, education and public welfare; Bela Ivadi, agriculture; Franz Keresztef - Fischer, interior, and Johann Mayer, small holders representative without portfolio.

AGENTS AGAIN RAID TEXAS GUINAN'S CLUB

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Texas Guinan was hostess at another raiding party before daylight this morning.

While several hundred patrons were gathered about her, a squad of dry agents invaded the Bronx Night Club, over which she presides. They arrested the manager and a cashier upon finding two bottles which assertedly contained gin. Miss Guinan and George Hammond, the manager, insisted the bottles belonged to a customer.

Merrymaking at the resort was halted for two hours while the agents searched the place and questioned employes.

Mission Manager Dies From Kick in Abdomen

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 23. (UP)—Fred Hassman, 69, manager of the Elizabeth Rescue Mission for the last five years, died tonight, 15 minutes after he had been kicked in the abdomen by a man who wanted a $5 loan.

He was trying to eject the man from the mission. The assailant fled and his identity was not learned.

TAMMANY LEADERS PREPARE FOR BATTLE

Democrats Want Investigation Extended to Upstate G.O.P. Cities, Counties.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP)—With only little more than a day left before the special legislative session convenes, Tammany's political strategists prepared tonight for battle.

The legislative session is called primarily to strengthen the powers of the legislative committee investigating the New York city government. Democratic leaders want the investigation extended to upstate republican cities and counties.

Senator John J. Dunnigan and Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, democratic leaders of their respective houses, arrived tonight to confer with Governor Roosevelt and to ascertain whether he had decided to so construct his message to the legislature, on granting the city investigating committee further powers, as to allow democrats to inject into the session their demand that the inquiry be extended to upstate communities.

Should the governor's message to the legislature adhere strictly to the subject of granting the investigating committee the powers sought, that of giving immunity to its witnesses, the democrats would be barred by house rules from attempting to debate the question of broadening the inquiry.

PHILLIPS PETROLEUM HEAD MUCH IMPROVED

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Aug. 23. (AP)—Physicians attending L. E. Phillips, 53, vice president of the Phillips Petroleum Company, who yesterday suffered an attack of acute indigestion, announced today the oil man's condition was greatly improved.

The doctors said they considered Phillips out of danger.

Publishers To Dedicate 'Freedom of Press Room'

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A "freedom of the press room" will be dedicated October 20 by editors and publishers from all parts of the country who will assemble in Monticello, the historic Virginia home of Thomas Jefferson.

Stuart G. Gibbony, president of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, in announcing plans for the meeting, today said the dedication will be part of a movement for the reawakening of patriotism in America.

MOTHER, SON FACE TRIAL FOR MURDER

AMELIA, Va., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Jeston Allen Jones and her son, Oscar, will go on trial here tomorrow morning charged with the murder of J. Will Jones, dairy farmer, husband of one and father of the other defendant.

An important witness for the prosecution is expected to be Robert Jones, fourth-year student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, who recently went to Commonwealth's Attorney George Keith Taylor and volunteered to tell his version of the fatal shooting which led to charges being lodged against his mother and brother.

HARLAN JUDGE TO RULE ON CHANGE OF VENUE

HARLAN, Ky., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Whether more than thirty men facing murder charges as a result of killing during the Harlan county coal fields labor disorders will be tried here or in some other county will be decided tomorrow by Circuit Judge D. C. Jones when he rules on a motion for change of venue.

Commonwealth Atttorney W. A. Brock filed a motion for the change last week when the August term of court opened. He said he did not believe an impartial jury could be obtained in Harlan county because of the high feeling resulting from the mine controversy. Brock said he desired the trials to be transferred to some county not affected by the coal mine labor dispute.

FOUR OF FAMILY DIE AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Father, Mother and Two Children Die When Engine Hits Car.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP)—A family of four was killed today when their automobile was demolished by a Wabash railroad train at a country lane crossing.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bozarth and their children, Mildred, 11, and Mary Ellen, 5.

They were on their way to church when the engine of their automobile stalled on the tracks. A fast St. Louis-bound passenger train smashed into the car before anyone had time to jump.

ONE KILLED, THREE HURT IN KENTUCKY ACCIDENT

LENOXBURG, Ky., Aug. 23.—(AP) One person was killed and three were injured in a three-cornered automobile accident on Highway No. 10 near here today.

Mrs. Mollie Taylor, 65, a widow, was killed instantly. Prentice Hause lost the sight of one eye, and Emory E. Dean and Frank Cerkley were slightly injured.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 24, 1931.

BLOODY, BUT UNBOWED.

A careful survey of the physical conditions of the people of Georgia shows that in matters of essential material welfare they have more largely escaped the worst effects of "the depression" than many of their fellow citizens of the south and the other sections of the Union.

One would not think that if he judged only from the talk on the curbstones and the nail kegs of the crossroads store, but the real facts winnowed from the chaff of conversation stand out to the credit of the people of Georgia in a heartening prominence.

It is officially proved by the census figures that the Georgia people are "living at home" more generally than they have done since the War Between the States over 65 years ago. For that praise must be distributed to the reform work done in recent years by the Georgia Association, the Georgia bankers' farm committee, the promotions of our agricultural college and the finely efficient work of county farm agents with local 4-H and other clubs among the young people of the farms.

To estimate all that effective work would demand an elaborate and meticulous account of the work accomplished on thousands of the farms of the state. It is enough to know what cannot escape notice, that many thousands of farmers in Georgia are living upon their own produce more completely than ever before, that their comfort and credit are much advanced, that they have learned a valuable lesson in self-support and independence. Many are yet in debt, but no longer feel hopelessly so. Many are still depending too largely upon cotton to insure their livelihood, but more and more of them are learning that cotton must be their by-product for profit and not their bread and butter crop. In all which the state is making big potential gains.

There isn't a county in Georgia where a man who hasn't lost both arms and both legs, or is not onery enough to be chased into Okefenokee swamp to fight it out with owls, bobcats and alligators, cannot make a decent living for himself and family on 20 to 50 acres of land. Hard-driven tenants have been doing that for years, but no more; they are practically empty-handed on the new year.

Consider Walton county, containing a state agricultural and mechanical school, and generally esteemed as a prime farm county of the state. It has 3,025 farms, 2,494 of which are operated by tenants, and 1,524 of which, or more than half, are farms of 50 acres and less. Perhaps, not one of them would have been allowed on a farm without a contract to grow cotton to pay rent and supplies credit. That is the system that overproduces cotton and beats down its price.

Yet Walton in 1929 harvested 308,084 bushels of corn for grain and threshed 22,919 bushels of oats, raised 10,378 bushels of wheat and 27,499 bushels of sweet potatoes and yams. It had 4,348 cattle, of which 2,668 were milch cows, together with 3,538 hogs and 56,223 chickens. Talk about "living at home" in the face of those figures which are far below what they were ten years ago!

The simple hard-grained truth is that the people of every county in the state, organized for the purpose and using their moral and community influence upon each other, could establish a self-supporting population and make their lands, homes and produce as valuable as any on the continent. The germ of independence and glory still lives in Georgia.

MUNITIONS OF PROSPERITY.

There would be a great impetus given to the revival of business activities in this country if some way could be devised to convince the common man that "the worst is over."

The savings accounts of the nation, belonging to more millions of individual depositors than were ever known in any country at any time in history, is the complete evidence that business only awaits public confidence that the curve of activity is turned upward.

To the common man of intelligence who reads the newspapers all talk about the "business depression" in America being the result of worldwide business depression sounds in pure hokum. He reads that money in Wall Street, even for speculation, can be had on good collateral at 1½ per cent. He reads that billions of our money is going away to Europe for government, municipal and industrial bonds, and is being used over there to build up competition with American products. He reads that American manufacturers are building big factories in foreign countries to profit from raw materials and cheap labor. He reads that foreign governments seeing us shut their goods out of our markets are proceeding generally to shut our goods out of their markets.

Besides all which the common man in the United States reads the true statement that our actual foreign trade is only 5 per cent of our domestic trade, and he cannot figure how that small percentage could produce a general slump and stagnation here at home.

What he does know is that the general discussion of European conditions—their financial, industrial and political troubles—caused himself and his fellow citizens to take a pessimistic view of the whole world picture. Because of that, they said, "We don't know what is coming, so we will haul close to the wind and save against the rainy day!"

So they saved, and very naturally the rainy day came upon them. They put away their money; they pared down the family budgets; they stayed out of the stores; the stores went less to the supply markets; the markets called less upon the mills; the mills slowed down, stocks accumulated, and, at last, many machines and millions of men had no work to do.

What else can reverse the situation than for the people to become convinced that the business barometer can fall no further; that prices were never more favorable to them than now and will not remain so favorable much longer; that now is the safe and profitable time to invest their billions of savings in what they need and want. Governments, corporations, businessmen, common men should now buy, build, restock depleted supplies, and start the idle wheels to work in the hands of millions needing work. America has the money and the men for a quick prosperity; she needs only a revival of her will to win!

FIGHTING THE FLY.

Plans for a concerted, nation-wide campaign against the fly, and others of what are termed "public enemy" insects, are announced in connection with the establishment of the Rex Research Foundation in Chicago, with experimental laboratories in Toledo, Ohio.

This foundation, an outgrowth of an insect fellowship maintained at Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, through the contributions of F. O. Moburg, wealthy Toledo citizen, who is also the chief backer of the foundation, will devote its efforts to the development of newer and better scientific methods of extermination. Extermination of the fly will be its chief objective and it will work in co-operation with health authorities throughout the country.

The foundation's first announcement stresses that the average American thinks of flies in terms of physical annoyance, overlooking the fact that no other carriers of disease spread so much sickness.

Scientific and governmental research has brought out the discovery that a single fly can carry upwards of 6,000,000 germs and that 75,000 people are now dying annually as the result of germs carried by these pestiferous insects.

More than 30 diseases have been traced directly to flies, the deaths from which exceed those from all the beasts of prey and poisonous reptiles combined. Chief among the diseases are typhoid fever, tuberculosis, diarrhea and the so-called "summer complaints."

The gigantic proportions of the task of exterminating the fly are emphasized by the fact that a new generation is born every two weeks and that each female lays 120 eggs at a time.

It is estimated by Dr. O. F. Hedenburg, fellow of the Mellon Institute, who has been named head of the Rex Foundation, that in addition to the deaths which can be traced directly to the fly, an annual damage of $368,000,000 to humans and animals can be laid at its door.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Shrewdest Greek

Of whom was it that Plutarch wrote when he said: "He was the shrewdest and most ambitious of the Greeks?" In these days there could not have been any doubt. The qualifications are wonderfully appropriate to M. Venizelos. That man should be seen at conferences to appreciate his diplomatic successes. He is full of entertaining stories and the stock never diminishes. No newspaper reporter is unwelcome. M. Venizelos begins to crack jokes, pats his interviewer on the back, and ends up by asking him to do something for Hellas.

At Geneva he is more often to be seen in the corridors, walking arm in arm with some ambassador or minister, than in the council rooms. The conversation always appears to be of the greatest secrecy, for M. Venizelos has a way of whispering things into his listener's ears. Only when it comes to ask M. Venizelos a question he becomes a different man. He seems to lose interest.

Today M. Venizelos is traveling up and down once more, gliding from London to Geneva and vice versa. M. Venizelos wants the island of Cyprus, now held by England. So far he has convinced all the newspapermen that to withhold Cyprus from Greece will mean the end of the world.

Mr. Shaw in Russia.

Mr. Shaw has plainly enjoyed himself in Russia—even more than he did in Italy. Judging from his confidences to a reporter at Berlin, it was a case of "roses, roses all the way," in Russia. Why does he like Russia and why was he attracted by fascism? What is that they have in common which appeals to him? Mr. Shaw is a confirmed authoritarian; he loves "laying down the law" and there are no countries where this is done more thoroughly than in Russia and Italy.

Because he has always been a socialist on account of his dislike of muddle, he naturally prefers Russia to Italy, for it is easier for a socialist of 50 years' standing to swallow communism, which is socialism run riot, than fascism, which is at best only a "doctored" syndicalism. But the fact that Mr. Shaw makes an enthusiastic visitor does not mean that he would necessarily make a satisfactory resident. One short visit is enough to give an impression of the gigantic tidiness which will be Russia; it is not enough to reveal the vast disorder that is the Russia of today.

Of course the chaos of today is not in the main the fault of the communists, while it certainly adds to the merit of their undertaking to make Russia the land of reasoned economy. But certainly it would get on Mr. Shaw's nerves and lead him to say sharp things which, in turn, would get on Stalin's nerves. And then Russia would rapidly cease to be a hospitable country. It would be a very different matter if Stalin were to do to Shaw what he has already done to Trotsky.

Walking Breweries.

The same Professor Arthur Thomson, whom we mentioned yesterday, has had some more interesting things to say in his classes in biology. He has had the audacity to call us bone-dry prohibitionists "walking breweries." This is the way he put it: "We cannot think of life without fermentation. In spite of ourselves we are all peripatetic breweries."

Consideration of conditioned reflexes led Sir Arthur to refer to an experiment made by Pavlov, the Russian physiologist. Pavlov, he said, took a lot of white mice, rang a bell and gave them a meal, and he stated that after 300 lessons it was enough to ring the bell to bring the mice dashing out of their dormitory to eat the meal that was not there. The second generation of mice, Pavlov said, required only 100 lessons, and the third generation 50, and so on.

"I was skeptical about this," said Sir Arthur, "and started similar experiments in Aberdeen. The first result was very interesting. Whereas the Leningrad white mice required 300 lessons to associate the ringing of the bell with the food that was not there, the Scottish mice, as one might have expected, required only 40."

The importance of the present situation was brought home o the English people when the country learned that King George was traveling all last night to return to Buckingham palace this morning so soon after he left here for a vacation.

Ceremonial Omitted.

No other member of the royal family came with him, and when he arrived at Euston station the customary ceremonial was omitted. Wearing a derby hat and black overcoat, the king looked unusually serious as he walked to his automobile and hurried to the palace.

It was soon after his arrival that Prime Minister MacDonald arrived for his first conference with the king. Besides giving his majesty all the details of the latest developments in the situation, the prime minister advised calling in representatives of the opposition parties so the king could hear their side of the case. It was after this that Stanley Baldwin and Sir Hubert Samuel, liberal leader, who represents David Lloyd George, were called to the palace. Each spent about 45 minutes with the king, explaining the attitude of his party.

Afterwards it was announced there was no question, at least for the present, of the king issuing anything in the nature of a proclamation.

It also was emphasized in court circles that the king's return did not presage the fall of the government, but that his majesty came to London in order to keep in closer touch with developments.

It was said he would remain in London indefinitely, until some solution was reached.

In political circles, the general interpretation placed upon the matter was that the king was using his personal influence to achieve by agreement by the three parties on a common policy, something for which the government has been striving during the past fortnight.

The liberal party's advisory committee met this afternoon and unanimously indorsed the course taken by its leaders in the three-party conference. It was announced the liberals would make no statement until after one is issued by the prime minister.

Reports that the prime minister encountered strong opposition within the cabinet to his economy proposals came tonight with considerable weight of authority. Best informed commentators said they could find nothing inherently improbable in the suggestion that the prime minister is turning toward the notion of a national government, and that the subject was debated in his midnight interview with opposition party chiefs.

When the prime minister returned from his late visit with the king it was reported a statement would be issued from Downing street within a few minutes. After the opposition leaders had conferred with him however it was intimated that the prime minister had changed his mind about issuing a communique and that no statement on the government's position could be expected until some time today.

Sir Herbert Samuel who left No. 10 Downing street just after midnight said "There is no statement to make tonight."

Baldwin and Chamberlin left by the back door. Correspondents who were waiting at the prime minister's residence a half hour after midnight were told that MacDonald had gone to bed.

Among the callers at Downing street during the evening was Sir Josiah Stamp, noted economist, who was accompanied by two companions who were believed to be financial experts. The noted economist did not leave until after midnight. It was generally assumed his visit had to do with taxation measures which the prime minister was believed to have incorporated in new proposals for the solution of the budget deficit of about $800,000,000.

CHARLES M. EVANS DIES AT HOME HERE

Charles M. Evans, 38, veteran of the World War, and for 12 years connected with the American Express Company here, died Sunday morning at the residence, 850 Hill street, following an illness of several months. Born in Lithonia, he came to Atlanta following his return from overseas, and was well known here through his connection with several amateur baseball teams. Surviving are his wife, and a brother, Rube Evans, of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the residence, the Rev. Marvin Williams and the Rev. E. M. Altman officiating. Interment will be in Stone Mountain cemetery, Stone Mountain. Blanchard Brothers Company in charge of the arrangements.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Another Look-See Over the Political Field To Be Fought Over Next Year.

The democrats of the country know now as well as they will know next June that President Hoover and his administration will be the things they will have to oppose before the voters next year. As Senator McNary, republican whip of the senate defines the situation, so it is. He says:

"Mr. Hoover wants to run, he expects to run and he will be nominated by our party. Where would the republican party be in 1932 if it repudiated its leader? It wouldn't have a leg on which to stand."

So Pinchot, Norris and the rest of the kickers to the contrary, the vast nationwide official set-up of the republican party will see to it that Hoover is renominated with scarcely a yawp of opposition.

* * * *

That Should Please Democrats.

That renomination ought to please the democrats as much as did the renomination of Ben Harrison in 1892 and that of Taft in 1912.

In both those cases the party had involved itself in circumstances which made it an inescapable obligation to renominate its president and stand or fall on his administration. In both cases, the party fell and fell hard.

The chief hope that the republican managers have for a win with Hoover in 1932 is that the democrats in the congress next winter will propose and argue for such wild legislation as will alarm the conservative people of the country. Already it is forecasted that democrats and insurgents will propose great raids upon the treasury that will increase the present huge deficit, enlarge the public debt, and necessitate new and deep-reaching taxes upon the earnings and savings of the diligent and thrifty.

* * * *

Some of the Certain Issues.

The country that was "rolling in fatness" when Hoover was carried to victory in 1928 on the highest tide of popular votes ever ridden by any American president, is now lean, anemic, discontented and resentful of an economic depression when its general riches of money and commodities was never greater.

The people demand "How come?"

It is this demand which the democrats must champion and press.

They must analyze the acts of Hoover and his party and show to the suffering farmers, laborers and consumers how much more their troubles are due to the policies of Hoover & Co. than to the "worldwide depression" which the republicans are using now as a smoke screen.

Unemployment and shortened markets are results of republican policies that, understood by the voters, will cause them to overwhelm that party with another Taft defeat, if not a worse one.

* * * *

Things To Be Postponed.

Those who know what is knowable of the Hoover psychology are aware that in the back of his brain is a burning ambition to outdo Woodrow Wilson in efforts to accomplish a world peace agreement among the nations. His mind is more international than national.

Under his hair are held a hope to join the United States officially with the World Court at The Hague. Personally, he would join us to the League of Nations, but is not bold enough to buck what he knows is an unbreakable national resistance to that association.

His plunge into the German moratorium measure was timely for an instant economic welfare purpose, but it is likely yet to produce—in fact, is already producing—a powerful movement for the revision downward of international debts and German reparations. The step from that to total cancellations is a short one, and in that lurks the dynamite of American resistance.

* * * *

Democracy's Work Is at Home.

What many of the wiser democratic leaders are coming to understand is that the more completely they confine the campaign of 1932 to domestic issues the greater will be their chance for a national victory.

When the whole business of the people is running on the lowest level of half a century; when capital is hiding safely behind vault doors; when enterprises have taken to the sidetracks; when unemployment is widespread and growing as winter comes on; when farmers are facing an epidemic of bankruptcy evictions and wage schedules are generally threatened, the voters of the United States are not going to be novocained with internationalism and give their tears to foreigners. They are going to demand that the government shall consider them before scattering charity abroad.

* * * *

The Fight Will Be Furious.

Even now it can be seen that the political fight next year will be a fast and furious one.

The southern and western farmers will combine to demand relief for the wrongs put upon them by administration policies. The southern farmers will be safely against the republican party, but the western ones have yet to orient themselves. Their usual habit is to stick to the republican party—and lose.

But they are learning at last that the Hoover-Grundy tariff is the greatest curse laid upon them. It has signally increased the purchasing power of the eastern dollar and cut down that of the western and southern dollar.

The eastern and northern industrialists want cheap food and raw materials. The tariff was deliberately framed to give them those things. The southern and western people are the victims of a vicious preferential tariff policy. Their only escape and self-redemption is to smash it and the party responsible for it.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 23.—Bebe Daniels has achieved the gint records of Hollywood—no small item in a colony which loves to give presents and whose presents may run anywhere from a town car to a beach bungalow.

When Bebe married Ben Lyon, gold tea sets and dinner plates were the order of the day. The table linens, the jewels, the silver, were unprecedented.

Now Bebe Daniels expects the arrival of the stork within 30 days. And almost daily, showers are being given for the newcomer. The gifts include sand slides which will have to be put in storage for a year or two, gold mugs, wee merry-go-rounds and a trousseau that might grace the nursery of any royal babe.

Such elaborate presents have never been seen in the colony. And as there are a lot more shower parties yet to come—Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lyon will need nothing for Baby Lyon for some time.

The agent racket is getting more and more steep in the cinema colony from day to day. John Decker, artist, recently had one of the keenest tricks put over on him that has yet been attempted.

Decker made a sketch of a famous actor. The sketch came out unusually well—so Decker thought. The usual price—$250, had been agreed upon at the original conference. The agent came to Decker after the finished drawing had been delivered to the actor, with this message:

"So-and-So says that sketch is all right but he won't pay a cent more than $50 for it. That's enough—you get a certain amount of reclame for doing it, you know, and that ought to count for a lot—what say?"

"I say have that sketch back here tomorrow afternoon," said Decker. "And be sure you get it back to me on time."

Meanwhile business took the artist to the actor's studio where, quite by accident, he met the lad.

"Say, that was a swell sketch you made of me," said the actor. "I think it's just great. I'm delighted with it."

"I'm getting it back tomorrow," said Decker. "But I thought it was pretty good myself."

The actor was surprised—they talked on—Decker discovered that the actor had given the agent the $250—that the little shakedown came from the representative and not from the star. He got his price; the actor kept his sketch and everyone is happy save the agent. It's hard to get rich quick on a mere 10 per cent.

They are paying extra these days for roles requiring trick haircuts. Ralph Bellamy, a promising young leading man, was first to profit by this. He was called for a part which demanded a freak haircut. Throughout the shooting the skull must be cropped tight, German-fashion."

A little intelligent negotiation and Bellamy got a bonus to protect him on possible loss of a future role through this.

And presently we shall find Shearer-Montgomery — Garbo-Novarro and Beery-Cooper at one of our leading studios. The taste for stars is becoming more cautious. So is the investing of money, this year. Clark Gable alone will hold forth in full glory—glory he has fought hard for these last weeks—emerging as a star in his own right with the passing of Billy Haines.

THOUSANDS AWAIT DEATH IN CHINA

pointed out that there is little need for such duty until the water recedes. Authorities said there must be at least 10,000 dead in Hankow alone, and no burials.

The dreaded outbreak of epidemic came just as relief officials had completed arrangements for innoculation of at least 100,000 persons against cholera. The equipment and medicine is pitifully meager but the commission has worked desperately under handicaps. Despite their efforts disease was spreading through the refuge camps, taking a heavy toll of life.

A representative of General Chiang Kai-shek, head of the national government, arrived by airplane and placed five military river steamers at the disposal of the relief commission. Refugees will be removed in ships. Several hundred junks also are en route here for the same purpose. General Fon Pan-jen was placed in charge of the Hupeh province relief work.

J. E. Baker, American member of the relief commission, made an aerial survey of the flood area today. He said the condition of mud flats along the edge indicated gradual recession of the water. Hundreds of men are needed to remove bodies from the mud and aid in checking pestilence, he said.

In addition to the usual danger of looting, communist groups already have made plans for taking advantage of the situation and openly announced that they would attempt to seize control of the region when movement on foot is possible again.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

PEPTIC ULCER AND THE HIGHER CULTURE.

If you have a little peptic ulcer in your home don't get snooty about it. When all is said and done it is just as indicative of culture as is an unbroken crease in your old man's best trousers. Females have 60 per cent of all the known peptic ulcers in the country—just as they have 60 per cent of about everything else. Perhaps that explains why peptic ulcer is associated with the claim of intellectual superiority.

The truth is we know very little about the health conditions or the disease conditions of savages or uncivilized tribes. We know as little about other people and the way they live as we do about the customs of modern China. Our childish innocence concerning China is shown in the serious way we take that old hokum about the Chinese paying the doctor only while they remain well and stopping his pay or even taxing him when they fall ill. Sometimes I get so mad I could lam a book right through the window when I find that the explorer or traveler who pretends to tell about the customs of some outlandish tribe hasn't a word to say about their health or disease conditions.

Putting a suggestion from this medical authority and one from another authority together and finding their ideas, observations and theories dovetail nicely, one acquires certain definite impressions from browsing through medical literature, impressions that stick. For instance we don't seem to understand why peptic (stomach or doudenum) ulcer is so common in this country, but recently there has been a tendency to ascribe the trouble to vitamin deficiency in our modern refined diet. The idea is rather supported by the extraordinary observation of an English army surgeon who lived for nine years among Himalayans, doing thousands of operations, yet never seeing a case of peptic ulcer or appendicitis. McCarrison attributed the freedom of these primitive people from such disease to their diet, which consists mainly of fresh vegetables and fruits, milk and eggs—no vitamin deficiency in such natural food.

If you have gastric or duodenal ulcer you can't very well indulge in fresh vegetables and fruits as freely as a healthy person should. But if you are just training for ulcer, so to speak, perhaps you can take a chance and gobble some fresh vegetables raw. For healthy folk this is certainly a good habit—to eat some fresh vegetable or relish whole and raw every day. What can be more palatable to a normal appetite than a raw fresh carrot or a fresh turnip or even a fresh raw whole tomato if you care for them. I hate 'em, but I eat 'em just because I'm so afraid I'll miss something if I don't. Or by way of a relish or salad what is finer than a basket of raw cabbage, cold slaw, preferably the green cabbage? The green contains more Vitamin A than white cabbage.

I have tried to set down in brief what advice I would offer about this, to eat—

(1) Suggestions of foods to take and foods to avoid, for those with peptic ulcer, hypercacidity of stomach or heartburn.

(2) Menu for People Who Have to Live With Peptic Ulcer Patient.

(3) Booklet about foods, diets, etc., "Guide to Right Eating." For (1) or (2) send your request (not a clipping) and stamped envelope bearing your address; for (3) add 10 cents in coin.

One of Gandhi's complaints concerned the posting of additional police in a certain village. To this the government replied that in the last two years the inhabitants of the village have been responsible for 44 serious crimes, including seven murders, several burglaries, kidnapings, theft, and illegal possession of arms.

Another of Gandhi's charges was that certain congress volunteers who had not paid their taxes were shut up in a room with hornets until they were badly stung and then advised to sell their wives to raise tax money.

To this it was replied that an inquiry showed the charge to have no foundation.

The general result of the replies to the latter class of complaints, alleging oppression against the congress and its members, was that many of them are entirely without foundation and that in many others the facts were misrepresented or exaggerated.

Complaints that women were stripped of their clothings, ill treated and insulted, were declared to be untrue.

MAHATMA GANDHI ON WAY TO CONFERENCE AT SIMLA

AHMEDABAD, India, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi set out today in a third-class railway compartment, with his mattress, his spinning wheel and his can of goat's milk, on his way to Simla to confer with Viceroy Lord Willingdon on the situation concerning observance of the Delhi truce and to ask the viceroy again to appoint an impartial tribunal to interpret the pact.

If Lord Willingdon will sanction such a tribunal to abjudicate the charges which Gandhi has made that the pact has been broken, the mahatma will leave for London, August 29 to attend the round-table conference.

"I contend that the appointment of an impartial tribunal is implicit in the Delhi settlement, in the event of differences arising between the government and the congress regarding its interpretation or its working in practice," Gandhi said in a telegram sent to the viceroy asking an interview. "But I would waive such an inquiry now if by quiet personal discussion, or some such informal means reasonable satisfaction is given in the congress."

The view prevailed here today that by this telegram the mahatma made the way clear for the viceroy to enable him to participate in the round-table conference. It was believed that the telegram indicated he will not insist literally upon the appointment of the tribunal if Lord Willingdon gives him satisfaction in other respects.

Gandhi took with him to Simla Kai-shek, head of the national government, arrived by airplane and placed five military river steamers at the disposal of the relief commission. Refugees will be removed in ships. Several hundred junks also are en route here for the same purpose. General Fon Pan-jen was placed in charge of the Hupeh province relief work.

J. E. Baker, American member of the relief commission, made an aerial survey of the flood area today. He said the condition of mud flats along the edge indicated gradual recession of the water. Hundreds of men are needed to remove bodies from the mud and aid in checking pestilence, he said.

In addition to the usual danger of looting, communist groups already have made plans for taking advantage of the situation and openly announced that they would attempt to seize control of the region when movement on foot is possible again.

If You Would Keep a Small Fact In Mind, Hitch It to a Big One

By Robert Quillen

Learning requires something more than a brief exposure to knowledge.

The knowledge must make a definite and permanent impression.

And since no such impression can be made on an indifferent mind, the art of learning is largely a matter of attracting the mind's attention.

When Cellini was a small boy, his father called him and his brothers to the fireplace, showed them a salamander among the coals, and soundly thrashed them all—not for any wrong they had done, but solely as an aid to memory.

Cellini tells the story in his autobiography; and though you may be tempted to question his veracity, you must concede that his psychology is sound.

When the old-fashioned pedagogue gave a pupil "something to remember it by," his reasoning was as right as his method was wrong.

Did you ever have the unhappy experience of being corrected in public by a frank and superior friend?

If your mistake was in the pronunciation of a word, and the correction caused your face to flame, you will never again mispronounce that word until the day of your death.

The thing that sticks in your memory is the hurt to your vanity, and you remember the pronunciation solely because it is associated with the hurt.

Suppose you turn over a cup of coffee while breakfasting at the usual hour in the usual place. The accident is unusual, and yet is soon forgotten because it is associated in your mind with usual things commonly forgotten.

Yet if a similar accident should occur while you were having breakfast with a visiting celebrity or in the course of your first dirigible flight, the memory of it would remain with you always.

Here, then, is a principle you can harness in teaching your child or training your own memory.

As any knowledge acquired at the price of shame makes an indelible impression, so any knowledge that is not in itself of sufficient interest to be treasured may be remembered by associating it with an experience that can't be forgotten.

Since a merciful provision of nature enables us to forget the multitude of usual things that are not worth remembering, the obvious way to fix a fact in the memory is to present it in an unusual way.

You will remember the date of your last visit to the dentist's if it was the day you made a hole in one.

King George Pivotal Figure in Crisis For Third Time in History of Reign

BY P. H. MYRING.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—For a third time King George, who called various party leaders into conference today on the political situation, has become a pivotal figure in a national crisis.

The first occasion was immediately after the beginning of his reign when he gave assent to the late Lord Asquith's request that if needed he would create sufficient peers to pass David Lloyd George's budget through the house of lords.

It also was the king who summoned all the parties to Buckingham palace to debate the Irish question when all other means of settling the problem appeared to have failed. But this, like all other aspects of the same problem, was submerged in the far greater crisis of the World War which supervened.

Those who believe that under the British constitution the monarch has no power to act of his own initiative usually express surprise at times like this to find the nation turning directly toward the crown. The truth, as seen by the best-informed commentators, is that while the king has not authority to act on his own initiative under the strict letter of the constitution, in practice there is almost nothing he cannot do if the emergency is sufficiently grave.

Ford's Employes Must Have Gardens Or Lose Positions

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Family men employed by the Ford Motor Company here must either become home gardeners or forfeit their positions.

This edict was promulgated yesterday by Ford during an inspection trip, as a measure to alleviate temporary business depression.

"Next year," said Ford, "every man with a family who is employed at the plant will be required to have a garden of sufficient size to supply his family with at least a part of its winter's vegetables, or he will find himself out of a job."

Workers who have no available space for gardens will be supplied with land by the company, he said. Ford said that during his two weeks' stay with E. C. Kingsford, his Michigan peninsula representative, he had studied the problem and had decided there was no use trying to help a man who did not attempt to help himself by raising foodstuffs.

Ford said the company would provide expert advice on gardening for employes. An investigation will be started soon, he said, to determine which employes needed instruction.

"When the people of our country learn to help themselves, they will be benefited far greater than they would be by unemployment insurance as is being suggested in congress to avoid the dole system," he said. "If our agricultural plans are adopted throughout the country, such a thing as the dole system need never be thought of."

He said he believed if the plan proved successful here, other companies would follow his lead.

LINDY IN JAPAN AFTER TRYING HOP

bunch, notified Kunashiri to be on the lookout for the fliers.

Their sudden appearance out of the sky caused great excitement among the fishermen of Kunashiri. One mounted a horse and galloped two miles to the town of Tofutsu to inform the postmaster of the arrival of a strange plane. Finally when the Lindberghs touched shore they were unable to make themselves understood until two commercial school students, who could talk fairly understandable English, appeared.

Later the students reported to the postmaster that the fliers were the Lindberghs, and he notified the Ochiishi radio station.

Meanwhile fishermen at the lake, which is a fish hatchery located between mountains, made preparations for the care of the plane and by sign language told the Lindberghs they had better stay over night at the town. Soon afterward they departed for Tofutsu.

WOMAN IS KILLED IN FOUR-STORY FALL

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—(UP)—Mrs. Daisy Price, 26, of Charleston, W. Va., died today from injuries suffered when she fell from the fourth floor of her hotel.

She was the wife of Lieutenant Commander George D. Price, of the aircraft carrier Lexington. Police believe the fall was accidental, but are questioning all persons who were attending the party. Price was on duty with the fleet in San Francisco bay at the time.

Mechanical Engineers Average $7,600 Yearly

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—At 55 years of age the "typical mechanical engineer" earns an average annual income of $7,600, says a report of a survey made public tonight by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

This age represents his maximum earning period. The report is based on 1930 earnings reported by 9,199 mechanical engineers, a period when the findings point out salaries had not yet been seriously affected by the depression.

Half of the engineers of 55 were earning the $7,600; a quarter of this age group $12,500, and one-tenth of them more than $25,000. Salaries were found to be highest in New York and lowest in the far west. It was found also that "engineering earnings do not decline seriously with age."

Bishop W. A. Candler Observes Birthday Quietly at Home

Bishop Warren A. Candler, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, observed his 74th birthday quietly at his home here Sunday.

Bishop Candler had been gaining strength rapidly after a recent illness until last week, when he motored to Villa Rica, Ga., to officiate at the marriage of a niece, Miss Annie Candler. Upon his return he was forced to rest.

Mrs. Candler, Sunday, said physicians had advised against any celebration of the day and only close friends would see the bishop. Numerous telegrams from Methodist conferences, ministers and friends arrived at the Candler home during the day.

One, which Mrs. Candler said they prized highly, was from Louis Alonzo, a Methodist minister in Cuba. Alonzo, then nine years old, was one of Bishop and Mrs. Candler's Sunday school pupils in Havana 30 years ago, when Bishop Candler opened the first Methodist mission in Cuba.

WESTOVER PIGEON WINS SUNDAY RACE

Westover loft, one of the local racing pigeon "stables," was credited with the first victory of the season Sunday, when a series of races for young birds opened. Shipped to Barnesville Saturday night, the birds were released at 7 o'clock Sunday morning by G. C. Gim, the Barnesville agent for the Atlanta Homing Pigeon Club. The Westover entry made the 50 airline miles in 1 hour 44 minutes 54 seconds, an average speed of 927 yards per minute. The next best time was made by the W. J. Stoddard loft entry of 1 hour 46 minutes 56 seconds, an average speed of 923 yards per minute.

The Capitol View entry took 3 hours 56 minutes 14 seconds for the journey, averaging only 350 yards per minute, leaving the impression that it visited with friends on the way.

ROBERT S. EUBANKS IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Robert Silas Eubanks, 86 years old, a veteran of the Civil War and formerly proprietor of a well known grocery on Broad street, died Sunday at his home on the Peachtree-Dunwody road after a long illness. Mr. Eubanks retired from business about 10 years ago.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. W. T. Smith, of Decatur; Mrs. B. I. Faber and Mrs. J. R. Bockman, of Atlanta; a son, Ivan Eubanks; two sisters, Mrs. Henry Clay and Mrs. Elsie Lester, both of Smyrna; and four grandchildren, Mary and Louise Faber, W. P. Smith Jr., and John Maxwell Smith.

The funeral will be at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the residence. The Rev. Augustus Ernest and the Rev. R. S. Broyles will officiate. The burial, under the direction of Awtry & Lowndes, will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

DROUTH LOAN BODY COMPLETES WORK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The national advisory loan committee, appointed last spring to supervise the loaning of emergency drouth funds to members of agricultural credit corporations and live stock loan companies, has disbanded after approving $1,327,440 in loans to 48 companies in 21 states.

GROWTH IS DISCLOSED IN ADVENTISTS' WORK

A report of the activities of the Georgia Conference of Seventh-day Adventists during the last fiscal year was read by President B. F. Kneeland at the 9 o'clock meeting Sunday morning in the tent at Boulevard drive and Whitefoord avenue, S. E. The report showed that 150 persons have been baptized and added to the conference membership the past year. The work in Atlanta showed a creditable growth in every way.

At the 3 o'clock meeting an illustrated health lecture by Paul E. Scoggins, resident pastor, was given. It was shown that upward of three millions were unable to do their usual work due to improper foods and lack of personal care.

At the evening service, attended by 1,000 persons, Elder Heckman, president of the southeastern union conference, with headquarters in Chattanooga, Tenn., spoke on "The Meaning of Present Day Conditions in the World."

American Honored.

BELLEAU, France, Aug. 23.—(AP) Colonel Richard T. Ellis, of Columbus, Ohio, was made an honorary citizen of Belleau today in recognition of his work in charge of gold star pilgrimages to the American cemeteries in France during the past three years.

MACHADO RETURNS TO STATE DUTIES

Quiet in Province Adds to Belief Revolt Has Ended.

HAVANA, Aug. 23.—(AP)—President Gerardo Machado today resumed action on the inauguration of constitutional reforms, a program interrupted by the Cuban uprising, while quiet in the provinces reinforced the government's belief that the revolution had been brought to halt.

Official statements issued after the president conferred with Representative Enrique Recio, of Camaguey, said the president had instructed Representative Recio to proceed immediately with the reforms.

At the same time he reiterated that his attitude toward the revolt leaders and their followers was "pardon rather than condemn," and expressed a wish to avoid further bloodshed. He again offered amnesty last night to rebels who would voluntarily lay down their arms.

The president sent a message of congratulation to Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim on the occasion of the latter's birthday.

There was talk of further trouble as soon as the scattered rebel forces could organize, but the problem of lack of leadership was the main drawback. It was doubted if someone would be found to take the place of former President Mario G. Menocal, captured rebel leader who is under heavy guard at Cabana fortsess along with Colonel Carlos Mendieta and other principals in the uprising.

Russell Expresses Pleasure at Work Of State Assembly

Governor Richard B. Russell said Sunday night that he had no comment to make on the actions of the legislature save to say that he was entirely pleased with the fact that the three major problems of the session were disposed of.

"The passage of the reorganization and reapportionment bills is exceptionally pleasing and, of course, I'm glad that the appropriations were put through," the governor said.

The executive said he would withhold comment on all of the measures until he has had an opportunity to study them closely in their final form.

"The chief thing was in getting the bills adopted," Governor Russell said. "For that we all are thankful."

GLADYS O'DONNELL LEADS AIR DERBY

CALEXICO, Cal., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Cal., aviatrix, late today led the handicap sweepstakes air derbyists into Calexico, first on their race from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland, landing at 3:45 p. m. She had averaged 162 miles per hour. Phoebe Omlie, of Memphis, came down 20 minutes later and Florence Lowe Barnes, of San Marino, Cal., was third, at 4:10 p. m. Others landed in quick succession.

TREASURY WILL SELL $80,000,000 IN BILLS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Ballantine announced today that the treasury would sell $80,000,000 in 91-day treasury bills to the highest bidder on August 27.

The bills will be dated August 31 and will mature on November 30, when they will be redeemed at face value. The money received from the sale of the bills will be used to retire $80,000,000 in 90-day bills which fall due on August 31.

FIRE WRECKS BANK IN TENNESSEE TOWN

HUNTINGDON, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Fire tonight wrecked the Farmers State bank and several offices in the building it occupied and destroyed Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company offices, leaving the city without communication by telephone.

The flames, originating in the bank building did damage estimated at $65,000 before firemen extinguished the blaze. McKenzie firemen aided local fire fighters.

Farmer Saves Train From Washout Disaster

BERLIN, Md., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Waving two red sweaters fastened to a pole, James Clark, a Worcester county farmer, today stopped a Pennsylvania railroad passenger train at the edge of a 300-foot washout. There were 81 passengers, bound for Ocean City aboard the train.

Rains for 72 hours had inundated lowlands about the right of way and washed out a part of the road bed. The farmer discovered the washout a few minutes before the train was due.

Wrecking crews repaired the damage and service was restored after several hours.

THREE MAJOR BILLS AWAITING SIGNATURE

without having raised taxes, but with the satisfaction of having passed an appropriations bill well within the state's estimated income, in spite of a tremendous drop in ad valorem. No effort was made to continue the sales tax, which expired this year after bringing in approximately $1,500,000 a year for two years.

Russell Praises Assembly.

In commenting on the work of the general assembly, Governor Russell said that it made a remarkable record by not raising the tax burden of the people, but actually reducing it by permitting the gross sales tax to lapse.

Several efforts at outright diversion of state highway funds were killed in both the house and senate, in spite of early session reports that anti-administration strength in the senate would force such a move to pay the debts.

People of Georgia will be given the right to decide whether they want a January session of the legislature, under a resolution passed by the general assembly. Offered by President W. Cecil Neill, of the senate, the resolution calls for a constitutional amendment fixing the meeting time of the legislature as the second Monday in January, 1933, and biennially thereafter, for a 10-day session to inaugurate the governor and other state house officers, introduce bills and resolutions, and transact other preliminaries. The assembly would convene in July for a 60-day session to enact legislation.

Road Repayment Directed.

Repayment of $25,000,000 advanced to the state by counties for road work was directed by the general assembly, beginning in 1936 and proceeding at the rate of 10 per cent of the gas tax each year. The legislature also passed a bill prohibiting further county participation in state highway construction.

Creation of a Stone Mountain memorial commission, with the right of eminent domain to condemn park and memorial property anywhere in the state, was authorized by the legislature. The commission will include the governor and the mayors of Atlanta and Decatur and four citizens to be appointed by the governor. The body will have charge of the completion of the gigantic Stone Mountain memorial to the Confederacy, an enteprise which failed in the hands of private citizens.

The present system of county game wardens was abolished, and legislation was enacted calling for a state game warden with assistants who will be charged with enforcement of the game and fish laws. Under the reorganization bill, the game and fish board is abolished and its duties placed on the commissioner, who is to appoint an inspector of coastal fisheries to succeed the tidewater commissioner. A bag limit legislation was agreed on, as well as an act requiring a fishing license to be paid by non-residents.

52d District Created.

While efforts to create a separate senatorial district out of Fulton county failed, the legislature passed an act creating the 52d senatorial district in south Georgia. An attempt to merge Fulton and DeKalb counties was defeated by Representatives Lindsay and Leathers, of DeKalb, but the Fulton-Milton county merger bill was enacted.

Atlanta was granted the right to vote on a proposed elimination of the 25 per cent water rate discount, the bill being passed in the last hours of the session after its death was thought certain. The local ward reduction plan, however, met an untimely end in the lower house after passing the senate, and the Atlanta sanitary district bill, urged as a great necessity because of the sewer emergency problem, failed to come up for a vote in the house because of the opposition of Representative McRae, of Fulton.

All the McRae-Eckford Fulton county reform bills were lost in the house when Representative Still, third member of the delegation, opposed them. These measures originally would have abolished the present county commission and created a new commission, but a compromise offered by McRae and defeated in the house on the only vote reached by a contested Fulton bill, would have left the commission as it is but would have greatly restricted its powers.

School Change Adversed.

A last-minute effort of council to solve the school problem by abolishing the school board was turned down in the house, and a bill repealing the moving permit fee of 25 cents passed the house but failed in the senate.

Local legislation enacted by the general assembly includes a firemen's pension law providing a sliding scale of pensions, an increase to 4,000 in the Fulton grand jury list and to 10,000 in the petit jury list, repeal of the "Greater Atlanta" act, and a bill making mandatory the county commission's contribution of $240,000 a year to the county schools.

Efforts to get through bills allowing the county to contribute to support of the city schools were defeated, together with the bill requiring the county to give part of its present road tax to the city schools.

"Black and Tan" Bill Loses.

An attempt to force the "black and tan" element from control of Georgia republican affairs was lost when the house failed to reach a senate bill sponsored by District Attorney Clint W. Hager and opposed by J. W. Arnold, of Athens, national republican committeeman-elect. The bill would have created a party primary system for the republicans, abolishing the present delegated mass meeting method of the party in which unregistered negroes participate.

Prior to adjourning Sunday morning, the house defeated a resolution recommending that the governor call up an extra session to take up the matter of enacting a prohibition against cotton planting for one year, as proposed by Talmadge in a speech in the house after attending the New Orleans conference called by Governor Huey P. Long, of Louisiana.

Rutherford-Vinson-Larsen.

The congressional redistricting plan approved by the general assembly throws Congressmen Rutherford, Vinson and Larsen together in the sixth district. The plan was approved after appointment of three conference committees by each house.

The general appropriations bill, as finally enacted, allows the governor $150,000 a year for an emergency fund instead of $200,000 a year as recommended by the budget commission. Publication of constitutional amendments will be limited to one paper in each district. Insurance on public property is cut from $153,000 for 1932 to $113,000, but is left at $5,000 for 1933.

The department of agriculture was given $300,000 for each year, with the provision that only $25,000 can be spent on the Market Bulletin, and that nothing except market bulletin quotations and bona fide listings of market products offered for sale shall be published in the bulletin. The act allows $75,000 a year out of the department's appropriation to the state veterinarian for control of cattle and animal diseases and for tick quarantines and enforcement of the dairy, meat and milk inspection law. The governor is authorized to refuse payment of Market Bulletin warrants if any matter, editorially or otherwise, is printed except advertisements for sale or exchange for the farmers.

The department of agriculture has been receiving more than $430,000 a year. The budget commission recommended $365,000 for 1932 and $355,000 for 1933, and the house cut the department to $255,000 for 1932 and $285,000 for 1933. The senate further reduced the appropriation to $200,000 a year, and when the bill went back to the house, the farm bloc obtained passage of an amendment hoisting the appropriation up to $325,000 a year. The third conference committee finally agreed on $300,000, and this figure was accepted by both houses.

Audit Department Fund.

The department of audits, given the additional work of carrying on duties of the auditing department of the department of education, is allowed $60,000 for each year. The house originally fixed the sum at $33,000. The salary of the superintendent of banks was limited to $6,000 a year instead of $7,200.

The department of education is allowed $160,000 a year instead of the house figure of $170,000 and the senate figure of $150,000. The common school fund was set at $4,411,250 for 1932 and $4,381,250 for 1933, the original figures adopted by the house having been $4,433,500 for 1932, and $4,406,000 for 1933. The senate receded from its position of seeking to strike the provision for holding teacher institutes. The senate also receded from an attempt to give the department of vocational education $127,500 a year instead of $125,000.

Paper Pulp Fund Set Up.

The act takes care of an appropriation of $20,000 a year to obtain a gift of $50,000 for development of the paper pulp industry in Georgia. The gift was obtained by Dr. Charles Herty, noted scientist, from the chemical foundation.

The senate receded from an amendment adding $3,000 a year to the entomology appropriation, but the house agreed to an amendment fixing the salary of the state librarian at $300 a month and to another amendment increasing the military department maintenance fund from $14,000 to $17,000 a year. The senate receded from an amendment allowing use of $5,000 of the building and ground fund for upkeep of Confederate cemeteries in the state.

Secretary's Office Revamped.

The department of secretary of state, allowed $150,000 a year for maintenance, was divided so that $25,000 a year goes to expenses of the secretary of state and corporations commissioner, and $125,000 a year to the expenses of the motor vehicle commissioner, the reorganization bill providing for the newly-created department of revenue to take over the auto license tag department.

Appropriations of the state tax commissioner were left at $85,500 a year, the senate receding from its cut to $70,000. The house agreed to a senate amendment to the item of interest on temporary loans, the amendment providing that "as much as necessary shall be used."

The Milledgeville state hospital, increased $100,000 a year by the senate, was cut back to $1,200,000 a year, with the proviso that if the amount is insufficient, the governor is directed to give preference to the hospital to the amount of $75,000 out of his emergency fund for each year.

Alto Expansion Approved.

The house agreed to a senate amendment authorizing purchase of land and buildings at Alto tuberculosis sanatorium, but the senate receded from this demand for an additional appropriation of $20,000 a year for tuberculosis field control work.

Appropriations of seven agricultural and mechanical schools, set at $15,000 a year when the house passed the bill, were finally adopted as follows: Fourth district, Carrollton, $17,500 for 1932 and $15,000 for 1933; Georgia Vocational and Trades school, Monroe, $20,000 for each year; Georgia Industrial College, Barnesville, $20,000 for each year; Seventh district, Powder Springs, $20,000 for 1932 and $15,000 for 1933; eighth district, Madison, $15,000 for each year; ninth district, Clarkesville, $15,000 for each year; tenth district, Granite Hill, $10,000 for 1932 and nothing for 1933.

The senate receded from its increase of the Bowdon State Normal and Industrial College from $23,000 to $27,000 a year. The senate also receded from its increase of the medical college at Augusta appropriation from $85,000 to $100,000 a year.

The senate did not insist on its amendment increasing the experiment station at Griffin from $12,500 to $17,500 a year. The conference committee raised the printing, stationery and incidental expenses of the legislature from $5,000 to $7,500, and increased the appropriation for expenses of the general assembly committees from $5,000 to $6,500.

G. M. C. Fund Abolished.

The Georgia Military College, Milledgeville, appropriation of $8,500 a year was stricken.

In handling appropriations for the latter half of 1931, the senate gave up its proposed increase of the state board of vocational education from $57,500 to $63,750, and also receded from its addition of $5,000 to the appropriation of $73,500 for agricultural extension work to match federal aid. The senate also receded from its increase of $5,000 to the $10,000 appropriation for rebuilding the tubercular hospital destroyed by fire at the state prison farm.

The departmental reorganization act, effective January 1, creates a board of regents to take charge of the university system, a board of control to handle all of the eleemosynary institutions, a supervisor of purchases in the executive department, and a state revenue commission. It abolishes the state board of health, combines the forestry and geology departments, and transfers the motor vehicle commissioner's duties from the secretary of state to the revenue commission. It abolishes the securities commission and places its duties on the secretary of state, and gives the secretary of state the power of appointing one secretary to take charge of the work of 15 boards. A law department consisting of the attorney-general and six assistants is created and given the duty of handling all of the state's litigation and legal work. The veterans service office, pension department and roster commission are consolidated under the pension commission, and a department of industrial relations is provided for. The state board of entomology is abolished and its duties given to the entomologist.

The public service commission and the banking department are left unmolested by the act.

The governor's staff was increased from 34 to 50 members, and a constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to classify intangible property for taxation was approved by the general assembly and now goes to the voters.

Congressional Redistricting of Georgia Takes Douglas From Fifth to Seventh

Georgia's new scheme of congressional districts, reduced to ten to comply with the 1930 census, is shown above as passed at the 1931 session of the general assembly. The fifth district includes Fulton, Campbell, DeKalb and Rockdale, Douglas county having been put in the new seventh.

Georgia's new 10-district congressional map, placing three present congressmen in the sixth district and leaving the other nine unopposed, is shown above. The act passed early Sunday morning by the legislature removes Douglas from the new fifth and places it in the seventh, but otherwise leaves the fifth intact, with Campbell, Fulton, DeKalb and Rockdale counties.

The map was agreed upon after a third conference committee reported to both houses, previous committees having been hopelessly deadlocked. The disputed counties adjusted by the conference committee were: Morgan, Green, Taliaferro and Warren, to the 10th; Franklin county to the 10th; Talbot, to the fourth, where it was originally located; Telfair, to the eighth; Rockdale, to the fifth, where it was originally located; Harris, to the third; and Peach and Houston to the third; Glascock and Jefferson to the sixth, and Jasper, Crawford and Monroe to the sixth.

Transfer of counties from the old 12-district map to the new 10-district map follows:

The first district gets Emanuel, Truetlen, Toombs, Montgomery and Wheeler from the old 12th.

The second district receives Brooks from the old eighth.

The third district gets Harris, Muscogee, Chattahoochee and Marion from the old fourth, and Peach, Houston, Pulaski, Dodge and Wilcox from the old 12th.

The fourth receives Newton from the old 10th, and Clayton, Fayette, Henry, Butts, Spalding, Pike, Upson and Lamar from the old sixth.

The old fifth loses Douglas to the new seventh and retains its other four counties.

The sixth receives Baldwin, Hancock, Glascock, Jefferson, Washington and Wilkinson from the old 10th. Putnam from the old eighth, and Twiggs, Bleckley, Laurens and Johnson from the old 12th.

The seventh receives Douglas from the old fifth.

The eighth is the old 11th district with the exception of Brooks county, which goes to the second.

The ninth is without change.

The 10th receives Franklin, Hart, Madison, Elbert, Clarke, Oglethorpe, Wilkes, Oconee, Walton, Morgan and Greene from the old eighth.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

"Old Time Fiddlers' Convention" to be held Friday and Saturday, will witness a gathering of fiddlers, banjo pickers and other string-instrumentalists from all parts of the south. The convention will be the 19th annual affair, and will be held in the city auditorium.

Approximately 16,000 school children living in Fulton county will enroll for the fall term September 4. On September 8, the schools will begin classes, before which all children entering county schools for the first time must be vaccinated, according to Jere A. Wells, superintendent.

Seventy students at Emory University will be given degrees at the summer convocation program Friday, according to J. G. Stipe, registrar. Dr. Elzy Dee Jennings will be given an honorary degree, which was voted at the 1930 meeting of the board of trustees, but which was not delivered because Dr. Jennings was in Europe at the time.

Spring Hill will be inspected by the Atlanta Chapter No. 57, Order of Eastern Star, the members and their friends, at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Board meeting of the group of zoning appeals will meet Tuesday afternoon to consider, among other matters, whether or not the planing mill operated by the Campbell Coal Company on the Southern Railway belt line near Boulevard Park comes within the commercial zones established by the city. Residents of the neighborhood have complained about the business.

Baby health centers will be held this week as follows: Today, F. L. Stanton school; Tuesday, Whitefoord school; Wednesday, St. Paul church; Thursday, Jerome Jones school; Friday, Faith school. All centers will be opened at 1:30 o'clock, and mothers of children up to four years of age may obtain free examination for them.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson's women's Bible class, of St. Mark's Methodist church, will hold a business meeting and supper at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the church. Mrs. W. H. Hall and her committee will have charge.

"Know Mississippi Better Train," containing more than 100 citizens of that metropolis, will arrive in Atlanta at 7 o'clock Friday morning in a good-will tour of the United States and Canada. The tour is planned to advertise the industrial and natural advantages of Mississippi.

Two 14-year-old girls, missing from their homes since August 15, are being sought by Atlanta police. Miss Artie Mae Ransom, of 778-B Fulton terrace, and Miss Parks, of 225 Pearl street, may have gone to join Miss Ransom's father, who vanished about August 1, according to police.

A boxing exhibition will feature the program of the Georgia-Made Products exposition opening tonight at the city auditorium, which will be further enhanced by music and vaudeville acts. The exposition will be free to the public, and will display all types of merchandise manufactured in this state.

A rascal wriggled into the Piggly Wiggly place through the rear window at 1578 Piedmont road early Sunday morning, and extracted $135 from the safe, according to police reports.

MRS. JAMES H. WYNN DIES IN MISSISSIPPI

GREENVILLE, Miss., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. James Harper Wynn, former state regent of the Mississippi Daughters of the American Revolution, died early today at the King's Daughters hospital here. She was 75 years old and a native of Little Rock, Arkansas.

Eight years ago, Mrs. Wynn organized the Greenville chapter of the D. A. R. and later was elected state regent. She also was actively identified with the Colonial Dames and the United Daughters of the Confederacy. She had resided here the past 43 years.

MRS. ELLA M. WATSON.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Ella Malone Watson, 71, sister of the late Circuit Judge Walter Malone, whose poem, "Opportunity," is widely quoted, died here tonight after a short illness.

NEW PASTORATE TAKEN BY DR. WILLIS CLARK

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Dr. Willis G. Clark, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church here, announced to his congregation today that he had accepted a call to St. Peter's Episcopal church at Charlotte, N. C., effective the latter part of October or the first part of November.

Girl, 16, Disappears With Parents' Savings

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Search was begun for Anna Nardes, 16, who disappeared from her home in East Seventy-eighth street late yesterday, police said, taking $3,000, the life savings of her parents.

Her father, Frank Nardes, a trackwalker for a street railway, told detectives that, having lost $700 in a bank failure he had his wife withdraw their joint savings from another bank Friday. The money was placed temporarily under a rug.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Nardes went shopping with her younger daughter, Theresa, 14 years old. When she returned Anna was gone and so was the money.

AGED CAROLINA WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN WOODS

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—After a 24-day search the body of Miss Millie Fish, aged 77, was found within two and a half miles of her home near Willow Springs, Wake county, late today.

The woman was missed on the morning of July 30. Suffering from the delusion that she had numerous contagious maladies, Coroner L. M. Waring was told she had more than once threatened to secrete herself in the woods.

Queen Helen Sweeps Aside Mrs. Whittingstall To Win; Grove, Beaten by Browns, Fails To Make New Pitching Record

BREAK of the DAY!
By Ralph McGill

Your Uncle Dan McGugin, who announced a few days ago that he had no intention of retiring from coaching at Vanderbilt, mentioned the fact that he once stayed away from a game and didn't like the sensation.

Now, Your Uncle Dan McGugin, who is one of Atlanta's favorite guests whenever he drops anchor here with or without his Commodores, didn't tell the story of the day he stayed away from a game.

As a matter of fact he didn't stay away. He is probably the only coach in the world who ever made a between-halves talk to his team while wearing a night shirt, fishing boots, a rubber hat, and a dressing gown.

It was about six years ago that he "stayed away." Pneumonia had him in its clutches and the family, in the home just a few blocks from the stadium, were worried. He insisted that they go on to the game. He was able to prop up in bed and answer the telephone.

The Commodores were playing Mississippi A. and M. that day. It was raining pretty hard and the Commodores didn't score until near the end of the half. And in addition to that the Aggies had a cross buck that was worrying the Commodores more than somewhat.

Coach Dan was hearing about all that on the telephone.

The assistant coaches had been talking to the team during the half no more than five minutes when the strangest figure ever seen in a football dressing room appeared in the doorway.

It was Your Uncle Dan. He wore a night shirt. It was stuffed, as much of it as would stuff, into some hip boots. Over the night shirt he wore a red dressing gown. And over that was a raincoat. On his head was a rubber fishing hat to match the hip boots. Rain dripped from him.

"Hello, Gents," he said. "And then he sat around and nodded, saying a few words, now and then, as the assistants told the boys how to stop that cross buck and a few other things.

There were no heroics about it. The Commodores had no chance to lose the game. Your Uncle Daniel just wanted to see the game. And see it he did, standing there in the door of the field house just out of the dripping rain.

The pneumonia, for some reason or other, gave up the ghost and the horrified doctor, who put Coach Dan back to bed, always seems to resent the fact that he didn't have a long sick spell, as they say up there.

He'll be starting his 28th season at Vanderbilt next month. The Vanderbilt alumni, being just as bone-headed as the alumni at other institutions after a losing year, are a little bit peeved. They'll get over it, of course, if he wins and next December may find him a genius again.

JIMMY JONES RECALLS.

Jimmy Jones, who joins The Constitution's sports staff Wednesday after five years as sports editor of the Macon Telegraph, recalls some interesting events in his career in his final column Sunday in the Telegraph.

Jones, who is especially proficient at writing baseball, was the first to urge Nap Rucker, Brooklyn scout in charge of the Macon club, to give Charley Moore, an unknown catcher, a chance to manage the Peaches.

Moore is now taking the Hartford club to the Eastern league pennant and is sure to be given a chance with Brooklyn within the next year or so. He may replace Wilbert Robinson at the end of this season.

It was Jimmy Jones who first urged the ability of Erie McNair, now one of Connie Mack's best reserves, on an Athletic scout when McNair was playing for Knoxville in the old Sally league.

And I must urge Mr. George Hanjaras, of the United Cafe, where the boys drink their coffee, that he pay no attention at all to Mr. Jimmy Jones if he begins urging him to wrestle some opponent in the restaurant business. Jimmy Jones once had two rival restaurateurs in Macon going after each other with bread knives by the simple method of making up stories, which one was supposed to have told about the other.

George Hanjaras had best put another cup of coffee on the fire and turn a deaf ear to Jimmy Jones.

THOSE CRACKER KIDS.

Those Cracker Kids did not exactly cover themselves with glory Sunday in Memphis.

But they did not quit in the face of fire, as the oldtimers had been doing, and give up. They staged a mighty battle with the Chickasaws.

Once the Crackers' directors made the mistake of putting too many youngsters in the lineup while the team was still in the race, there was nothing else left to do but go ahead and dismantle the team to make room for more kids.

And after all, there was no excuse for the Cracker players surrendering when the youngsters were put in. They might have hustled and stayed in the race. They had signed contracts to play ball. When all the hustle left a few fines might have done some good. When they didn't hustle the only thing left to do was get rid of them.

The Cracker directors should take the public into their confidence—let them know that an honest effort is being made to build the club again and let them feel that their interest is appreciated. If the Cracker directors fail to do that then the fans cannot be blamed if they stay away.

MARQUARD'S RECORD STANDS.

There will be quite a lot of the baseball fans, who were in their prime in 1912, thinking fondly of old Rube Marquard today. His record of 19 consecutive games won still stands. Lefty Grove lost Sunday to Dick Coffman, of the Browns, the same fellow who pitched a 1-hit game a few days ago. Coffman out-pitched Grove all the way, giving up three hits to Grove's seven.

Grove won 16 straight, the same number that Joe Wood and Christy Mathewson stopped with in 1912, the same year Rube Marquard won his 19.

Nothing, of course, can take away Grove's great record established this year. And it was tough on Grove to lose on a misjudged ball. And I wonder what he thinks of Connie Mack for keeping the big guns on the bench? Perhaps Grove didn't care a great deal about winning 19. Records are ephemeral things at best and cannot be cashed for pork chops at the butcher shop.

HELEN DEFEATS ENGLISHWOMAN FOR NET CROWN

Score Is 6-4, 6-1 as Invincible Star Wins Her Seventh Title.

By Gayle Talbot,
United Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP) Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, still the impassive, perfect tennis player, came back today to claim her rightful place atop the women's tennis world by defeating Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, of England, in straight sets in the finals of the 44th national women's tennis tournament at Forest Hills.

The scores—6-4, 6-1—indicate the ease with which Queen Helen turned back the last of 63 players who questioned her right to the throne she relinquished a year ago. It took her 24 minutes to subdue her slighter opponent in the opening set, but she ran through the second in 10 minutes with the loss of only 14 points.

Mrs. Whittingstall, who on two preceding days had blasted aside Helen Jacobs, America's second greatest player, and Betty Nuthall, England's No. 1 star and defending champion, could not cope today with the steady stroking of Mrs. Moody. Her dashing net attack was spiked, and she couldn't keep her shots in the court. She wilted after carrying the score to four-all in the opening set.

HER SEVENTH TITLE.

The victory gave Mrs. Moody her seventh national title since she first came east, her hair in a "pigtail," at the start of the last decade. She won her first championship in 1923, repeated in '24 and '25 and then, after a year's absence, swept them all aside in '27, '28 and '29. She did not compete last year, the title going to Betty Nuthall when she defeated Mrs. Lawrence Harper, of America, in the finals.

Only Mrs. Molla Mallory, who captured the crown eight times, now holds a better record than Mrs. Moody in that respect. Mrs. Moody's latest defeat, incidentally, was at the hands of Mrs. Mallory, who beat her at Westchester-Biltmore in 1926. Mrs. Moody has lost only one set since, and the form she displayed today makes it doubtful if she will drop another in the near future.

It was evident from the start, when Queen Helen ran off the first three games, that Mrs. Whittingstall was in for a tough afternoon. Repeatedly she tried unsuccessfully to close in for her favorite game at the net.

GREAT TENNIS.

Mrs. Moody either sent the ball whizzing past her for a placement or put it at such an angle Mrs. Whittingstall could not get it back over the net. Occasionally the Briton did score sharp placements before the first set was out, but not often enough to save her.

Mrs. Whittingstall enjoyed a few brief moments of glory in the initial set, when she came back to break through Queen Helen's service once to tie the count at three-all and then at four-all in games, but it was her final gesture. Mrs. Moody quickly took the two games she needed for the set and then raced through the second with the loss of one game. Mrs. Whittingstall won that game on her own service. Only one of the last five games went to deuce.

A recapitulation disclosed that Mrs. Moody won 59 points to her opponent's 40 in the two sets; served five aces to her rival's two, scored 13 placements to Mrs. Whittingstall's 7, made only 14 outs to the Englishwoman's 24, and was guilty of two double faults to the loser's 5.

The point score:

FIRST SET.
Moody	4	4	6	0	1	1	4	2	4	5	—6
Whittingstall	1	1	4	4	4	4	0	4	1	3	—4
SECOND SET.
Moody	4	3	4	5	4	4	4	—6
Whittingstall	1	5	1	3	1	2	1	—1

The doubles final was scheduled tomorrow, with the English team of Mrs. Whittingstall and Betty Nuthall meeting the Anglo-American combination of Helen Jacobs and Dorothy Round, of England.

As an added attraction on today's program, the mixed doubles team of Betty Nuthall and Peck Griffin, of San Francisco, defeated Helen Jacobs and Manuel Alonzo, of Spain, 6-4, 6-2, 1-6.

Flowers To Fight Thomas Tonight

Two 10-round bouts will feature an all-colored boxing card at 8:30 o'clock tonight at Roby's arena, corner Courtland and Cain streets.

Tiger Thomas, of Chattanooga, will meet Cecil Flowers, a brother of the late Tiger Flowers, in the main attraction. Kid Moon and Cowboy Kid, two favorites with local boxing fans, will furnish the 10-round semi-windup attraction.

Others on the card include Tiger Jewell and Kid Roberts and a 6-rounder between Joe Stewart and Charlie Booker. A battle royal will open the show.

Cook, McWilliams Leave for Amateur

Gene Cook, of the East Lake Country Club, and Billy McWilliams, of the Coosa Country Club, Rome, Ga., will leave early today for Chicago, where they will participate in the thirty-fifth national amateur golf championship, August 31-September 5.

They will represent Georgia in competition for the crown left vacant by the retirement of Bobby Jones.

Others who qualified from the fifth sectional elimination play late in July on the East Lake course, are Carl Dan Jr., of Asheville, N. C., and Jack Toomer, Jacksonville, Fla.

McWilliams will be accompanied by his mother and father, while Cook will drive through with Albert Jones, West End professional, and John Smith, Atlanta businessman.

Checker Players Drill for Tourney

Georgia checker players will complete their final few days of practice today and Tuesday in various sections of the state in preparation for the annual championship Wednesday and Thursday at Lawrenceville, Georgia.

Harold Almand, of Atlanta, is the defending champion, having won the title in 1929 and 1930 also, but will face plenty of competition in the Lawrenceville play.

Other champions who are entered include: D. W. Skelton, Newman and Amos Risk, of Atlanta, and Mitchell, of Yatesville, Ga.

Play will start at 9 o'clock Wednesday and continue through Thursday afternoon. More than 75 entries are expected to compete.

Hines Beats Bryan For Carolina Crown

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 23.—(AP) Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., won the North Carolina tennis championship at the Biltmore Forest Country Club here today, defeating Robert "Lefty" Bryan, of Chattanooga, 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

Goodrich To Meet Allen Here Tonight

Ted Goodrich and Frankie Allen, Atlanta welterweights, will meet tonight in an exhibition bout at the City Auditorium on the entertainment program of the "Georgia Made Products" sponsored by the Southern Products Development Association. The fight will be free of charge.

CRACKERS SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER WITH MEMPHIS

Chicks Win First, 9-8; Atlanta Takes Nightcap, 8-4.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 23.—Periodically the Chickasaws stood still and fell back. They stood still by halving a doubleheader with the Crackers before a small Sabbath gathering at Russwood park. They fell from second to third place while the Travelers beat the leading Barons and moved into the runner-up position that had been held by the Tribe for a long time. Second place, however, is just second place, as the Barons are so far out in front they are virtually "in."

The Chicks won the first game, 9 to 8, while Joe Hutchinson, who was late arriving at the party, blasted one off Climax Blethen over the right field wall in the eighth. It ended a wild scoring spree by both sides and gave George Granger, young Tribe righthander, also essaying a relief role, a victory over Blethen, the third Cracker pitcher. Granger had taken up where Walter Beck left off under fire in the third inning.

CHICKS NOT SO HOT.

The Crackers won the last one, 8 to 4, simply because the Chicks were worse than the Crackers. Bunny Hearn, tiny lefthander, who started the first game and lasted only one and two-thirds innings, was winner of the second, although he gave up 10 hits. The Chicks used three pitchers, with Clarence Griffin, diminutive lefthander, allowing four runs and five hits in two innings. The Chick infield helped the Crackers make four runs off "Kit" May in the fourth and Harry Kelly pitched the last round.

Instead of a battle by the Chicks to hold second place and a battle by the Crackers for whatever reason they might have been battling for, they played as if it was all in a day's work and not many more working days this season.

YOUNGSTERS STAR.

Benny Rothstein, former Georgia grid star, and Darr Shealy, late of the University of Alabama, playing first and second base, respectively, were contributors to the Crackers' victory. In the first inning, when the Crackers scored four times off Griffin, Rothstein hit one over the right field wall with two men on and Shealy singled, scoring Ryan, who followed Rothstein's homer with a double. Each got another single and both fielded their positions in a very satisfactory manner.

In fact it looks as if young Messrs. Rothstein and Shealy may be very prominent among the Crackers of 1932.

The Chicks and Crackers will rest here tomorrow and close their books for the season with a matinee Tuesday afternoon.

THE SPORTLIGHT
By Grantland Rice

Jack Dempsey faces his second opponent along the comeback trail in Portland, Ore., tonight. The old Manassa Mauler stopped his first one in Reno a few days ago in two rounds and he will probably have no great trouble massaging the next one.

Just what Dempsey's final goal may be is still something of a guess. He may be intending to stage a real comeback, or he may be planning to cash in on his personal popularity and his old punch, which still remains. There are many who have only a razzing chorus left for the Dempsey and the Leonard comebacks, but they have two values. They are at least interesting and they have their instructive side, the instructive side being further proof that a fighter out of the ring so long can or cannot work his way back very far.

Dempsey weighed 199 pounds in his first knockout exhibition. This is only six or seven pounds more than he weighed against Firpo in 1923 and that was eight years ago. The odds he faces are heavy, just as they are in the case of Benny Leonard, who will open his campaign soon. But no one has yet kidded the Dempsey case half as much as Jim Corbett was razzed when he came back to meet Jeffries after nearly a five-year layoff.

"I still had the legs," Jim said recently. "They all forget about that part of it." So the story of Dempsey and Leonard may involve the matter of legs if they ever swing into action against one of the headliners again.

Invading Strength.

Fred Perry, the young British tennis player, has already shown a bale of stuff since his arrival on this side and he will look a lot better after the two more weeks he has in which to get acclimated and train for the national championship at Forest Hills.

In the same way Phil Perkins will probably be ranked the leading contender when the United States amateur golf championship starts a week from today at Beverly. Bobby Jones popped into the offing a day or two ago and I asked him about Perkins' game.

"I don't believe there is a better golfer in the field," the 1930 champion said, "not a better campaigner through a hard stretch. If you had to name just one man I don't see how you could get away from Perkins."

The Battle of Beverly.

No. 4. The Far West and Nebraska.

There are three entries at least from this double sector who will bear watching. One of them is Charlie Seaver, who played such fine golf at Merion a year ago. The other is Lawson Little, another hard-fighting match play star. Seaver is from Stanford University, Little from San Francisco. The third is Johnny Goodman, the Omaha entry who gained his first big game by eliminating Bobby Jones at Pebble Beach in 1929. These three are all fine golfers and all three are first-class competitors.

Of the three I think Goodman is probably the soundest all-around golfer. He has had a more consistent record. There are many who think that all Goodman ever did was to beat Bobby Jones. That was something by itself. But he led his qualifying district for the open in 1929, he led his qualifying district for the amateur this year and he won the trans-Mississippi title, which is always something to win. Goodman isn't the longest hitter you ever saw, but he is long enough and usually straight. And, what is more important, he is a good, compact iron player who usually finds the green.

And he has proved more than once that he won't wilt in a pinch. No one who saw that tee shot against Bobby Jones at the difficult 17th hole at Pebble Beach could forget that shot. It was about 220 yards through a cross wind into a dish pan.

Young Seaver is a hard hitter, capable of brilliant golf. All he needs is more seasoning. It so happens that he has several other sports, including football, so golf doesn't get all his time and attention. Seaver can be counted on to stick to the limit and Beverly's length will suit his long range style.

Lawson Little will be one of the most determined entries in the field. He is a good golfer, but above all the type that hangs on, that never surrenders and is never discouraged. He could land a drive in the middle of an oil well and still expect to get his second somewhere near the green. He carried Ouimet to the 36th green at Pebble Beach. Little was 1 down here. This hole is 570 yards in length, yet the San Francisco entry whaled out a mighty drive, put his second five yards from the green and chipped stone dead for his birdie 4. Ouimet had to sink a 20-foot putt for a half on the hole and a win on the round.

Both Little and Goodman are on the deliberate side. Neither ever makes a careless stroke.

Golfers of West End Take Lead in League

Gene Cook and John O'Neal Play Brilliant Golf in 15-3 Victory Over Ansley Park.

West End golfers regained leadership of the North Georgia Golf league with a 15-to-3 victory over Ansley Park Sunday afternoon on the West End course. Rome defeated Forrest Hills, 6 to 3, in the other match scheduled for Atlanta courses.

In regaining the lead, Gene Cook, and his youthful partner, John O'Neal, led the attack with three points over Muggsy Smith and H. R. Wagar, of Ansley Park.

O'Neal, who Friday won the West End Junior championship and the Gene Cook trophy, made his debut on the team and shot a spectacular 75, to share honors with Cook during the afternoon.

It was Cook's last appearance on his home course before departing Monday for Chicago, where he will participate in the national amateur golf championship August 31.

In the other matches, McConnell and Barnes, West End, won three points from Welch and Jones, Ansley Park. Morgan and Manone, West End, won three points from Sage Jr., and Downing, Ansley Park. Adamson and J. I. Cook, West End, lost one point to Strong and Jack Cook, Ansley Park. Tolleson and Cochran, West End, lost one point to Nowell and Blackmon, Ansley Park. Simmons and Lively, West End, won three points from Sage Sr., and Merritt. Fuss and Spinks, West End, lost one point to Woody and Huntt, Ansley Park.

Playing without the services of Captain Billy McWilliams, the Coosa Country Club team, from Rome, defeated Forrest Hills, 6 to 3, Sunday afternoon on the Forrest Hills course.

McWilliams spent the afternoon on his home course, hitting a few drives and touching up on his approach shots.

Tommy Barnes Wins Scott Tourney.

Tommy Barnes won his second invitation golf championship within eight days when he defeated Max Smith, 12-11, in a 36-hole match Sunday on the John A. White municipal course for the first annual Trammell Scott invitation championship. Last Sunday the 14-year-old youngster defeated Harry Barnes, an elder brother on the Stockade course to win the third annual James L. Key invitation championship.

Barnes played one of his best rounds Sunday to eliminate a fellow municipal player. He carded a spectacular 75, one over par, on the morning round of 18 holes and was 11 up at the intermission.

During the afternoon he continued to set a steady pace and soon closed out Smith, 12 and 11.

Barnes was particularly good on his driving and putting Sunday. He was rarely ever off the fairways and good recovery shots kept his score within a stroke of perfect figures all the way.

His great victory Sunday serves notice that Barnes will be in the front ranks when the city championship starts one week hence on the Druid Hills course.

The annual city tournament will be open to every amateur golfer in Atlanta, irrespective of their club affiliation. Municipal players must register from one of the four city courses, who are members of the Municipal Golfers' Association. That organization is a member of the Atlanta Golfers' Association, which is sponsoring the city event.

Blue Poloists Win Over Whites, 9-3

The Blues defeated the Whites, 9-3, Sunday afternoon in a polo game at Fort McPherson before a good crowd. It was an exciting game despite the one-sided score.

GAME CALLED OFF.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The scheduled exhibition game between the Cincinnati National league baseball club and the Camden semi-pro team was cancelled today because of rain.

Forrest Hills Has Busy Week-End.

Forrest Hills golfers spent a busy week-end completing a number of first and second-round matches in the annual club championship tournament. There is no particular time set for the matches and the tournament will continue through the second or third week in September, in order that every match can be played.

Tom Stewart's 3-1 victory over Horace Smith in 27 holes and three one-up matches featured the first round in the championship flight. A. B. McDermon eliminated E. S. Nelson on the 22nd green in the second flight.

DICK COFFMAN HOLDS MACKS TO THREE HITS

Heart-Breaking 1-to-0 Defeat Halts Grove's String at 16.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Robert Moses Grove will have to be content with being a joint holder of the American league record for consecutive pitching victories for the present at least, instead of owning the record outright.

Already a joint holder of the record of 16 straight games, established in 1912 by Smoky Joe Wood, of the Boston Red Sox, and equalled the same year by Walter Johnson, of the Washington Senators, Grove attempted to better it today at the expense of the St. Louis Browns.

But he ran up against a three-hit pitching performance by Dick Coffman, who shut out the A's, 1 to 0, in the first game of a double-header. The Athletics won the nightcap, 10 to 0, behind Waite Hoyt's airtight hurling.

Grove was good today, but Coffman was a little better. The Browns touched the southpaw fireball artist for seven hits, compared to three allowed by Coffman. Grove fanned six, two more than Coffman. The only base on balls was issued by Coffman. Grove made a wild pitch.

The Browns put over the only run in the third inning on a single by Schulte and a double, which Moore misjudged, by Melillo after two were out.

Grove equalled the league record for consecutive victories when he defeated the Chicago White Sox last Wednesday. His record for the season now is 25 triumphs, against only three defeats.

Hoyt limited the Browns to four hits in the second game, while the Athletics were pounding Stewart, Stiles and Kimsey for 17.

Coffman, in blanking the A's, became the first American league pitcher of the year to accomplish the feat.

DOUBLES MEET STARTS TODAY

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 23.—(AP)—With the Newport casino finalists, Johnny Doeg and George Lott, defending champions, and their conquerors, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, of California, seeded first and second, the golden jubilee national doubles tennis championship play will get under way tomorrow on Longwood's historic courts.

For the first time in years the foreign element in this tournament will be limited to a single team. Frederick J. Perry and G. Patrick Hughes, British Davis cup players, have been given the choice spot in the fourth quarter of the draw, which was made with 32 teams.

Johnny Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, runners-up last year, were seeded third. The other teams ranked in order were: Gregory Mangin and Berkeley Bell; Sidney Wood and Frank Shields; Jack Tidball and Lester Stoeffen, of Los Angeles; Wilbur F. Coen Jr., Kansas City, and Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore; Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, and Bruce Barnes, Austin, Texas.

Three other national doubles competitions will also be run off during the week; the mixed, veterans and father and son.

Constitution Team Is Again Victor, 9-1

In the deciding game of a two-out-of-three series, The Constitution's baseball team defeated the East Atlanta All-Stars, 9 to 1, Sunday morning at Almand park.

Dobbins, pitching for The Constitution, kept the All-Stars well in check, allowing seven practically harmless hits. It was a tight game until the last of the eighth, when the newspaper team streamed across the plate for seven runs.

B. Mims and Cronin starred at the bat for the winners, each pounding three out of four. The Constitution, which is the champion among the city's three newspapers, will play the Journal in a return game next Sunday at Spiller park.

Miss Hopkins Elected Director Of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority

Miss Jessie Hopkins, prominent Atlantan, who is educational director for the Pi Beta chapter of Atlanta, of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority. She will address the members at the installation banquet given Tuesday evening, August 25, at East Lake Country Club.

Miss Jessie Hopkins, a nationally-known woman of letters and librarian for the Atlanta branch of the Carnegie library, has been elected by national headquarters for Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority as educational director for the Pi Beta chapter of Atlanta. This appointment is evidence of Miss Hopkins' recognition as an outstanding reviewer and literary critic, and she will address the sorority members at the installation banquet to be held at East Lake Country Club Tuesday evening, August 25.

Miss Hopkins is a graduate of Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga.; New York Public Library school, and was conferred an honorary degree, doctor of letters, by the University of Georgia. Responsible positions which have been held by Miss Hopkins bespeak her influence in the world of literature and art. She has served as organizer, public library, Wilmington, N. C.; assistant librarian, public library, Montgomery, Ala.; cataloguer, library, University of Georgia; librarian, public library, Paducah, Ky.; librarian, Tompkins Square branch, New York city; A. L. A. war service, New York city; librarian, Carnegie library of Atlanta, and president of the Georgia Library Association.

Miss Hopkins contributed to the book review section of the Atlanta Journal for nine years and has broadcast weekly library news over Station WSB. In assuming the responsibility of educational director, Miss Hopkins expresses a profound interest in adult education. She says: "Today we have to be re-educated. We must reconstruct our thinking. We need a new code of ethics to meet new life conditions. We can make our adjustment to this continuous change only by continuous education. This is what adult education can do for us."

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

71.

Keeping Open the Lines of Communication

In Contract seas float many a derelict, the result of some Bridge ship foundering on the hidden reefs of distribution. Distribution monstrosities are interesting types of Bridge hands, but when the bidding discloses that the hands do not "fit" it is well, even with great honor strength, to stop and count up unquestioned assets before venturing too far or contracting for too many tricks. Singletons, voids and the like have a habit of repeating themselves. If one hand has a singleton, it is more than an even chance that another hand also has but one of a suit. If one hand is void, it is quite probable that another hand will disclose a void in another suit. The law of symmetry does not work with unfailing accuracy but it does work with enough regularity to be worth remembering and applying when the bidding or play discloses unusual types of suit distribution.

One of the basic troubles with distributional freaks is the great danger known to all Contract players, that the hands will not fit. In other words, that the lines of communication between the two allied armies (the hands of the Declarer and the Dummy) may be cut by an alert adversary, and honor-tricks in side suits fall before apparently insignificant trumps in the opponents hands can be taken out. If the allied hands do not furnish a wealth of entries, then care must be taken to preserve such as do exist until such time as the enemy has been made helpless.

Take the hand below dealt recently in a Duplicate match in New York city, in which some of the city's most expert players came to grief and then failed to solve the mystery of making 12 tricks on the hand.

Both sides vulnerable, South Dealer.

North: ♠ 9 8 3 ♥ Q 7 6 5 ♦ Q 10 ♣ Q J 9 6

West: ♠ Q J 10 ♥ A K 8 4 3 ♦ — — ♣ A K 8 7 5

East: ♠ A K 6 4 2 ♥ — — ♦ A J 9 6 4 ♣ 10 4 3

South: ♠ 7 5 ♥ J 10 9 2 ♦ K 8 7 5 3 2 ♣ 2

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♥(1)	Pass	2♠(2)
Pass	3♣(3)	Pass	3♦
Pass	5♠(4)	Pass	6♠(5)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—West's hand is a good type of two-suiter, but the lack of intermediate strength in either suit makes it a safer Opening bid of one. If partner is able to respond freely, then game at the best declaration should be quite probable.

2—East is at once on his guard against a possible freak distribution. He is void of the suit bid by his partner. However, his hand has 3 honor-tricks and is strong enough to force partner to keep the bidding open until game is reached.

3—Assured of another chance to bid, West uses this round of bidding to convey additional information to his partner as to his distribution, rather than raise the spade contract to game. His hand is much stronger than he has yet shown, and after East's Forcing Takeout a Slam appears to him as a practical certainty.

4—West now is put on notice that his partner's hand does not perfectly fit his, as he had hoped was the case with the Jump Takeout in spades. He reads East's hand as quite likely containing five spades and five diamonds, with only three cards in hearts and clubs. It is, of course, possible that the diamond suit may have only four cards. A healthy fear of the reefs of distribution causes him to leave the bidding of the Slam up to East.

5—Even with the knowledge that finesses, if necessary, cannot be taken in hearts, the Slam try by East cannot be criticized. Apparently the trump situation is satisfactory and West's club bid shows to East two suits which should provide means of ingress and egress in either hand as the playing proceeds.

South's choice of an Opening lead is but a forlorn hope at best. He appears to have only two chances of defeating the contract; the vague possibility that his partner may make a trick, and that either one of his worthless trumps may be cashed on a club or that the diamond King behind the Declarer may materialize into a trick. The lead of the club singleton, bad as it is with two trumps, appears to be better gamble, and it was the one that most South players adopted.

Unwittingly or not, it was a most excellent lead. For the moment it cut one line of communication from the East hand to the West and this line could not be re-established until South's trumps were drawn. The lead was marked as a probable singleton. The difficulty of communication between the two hands made it necessary for East to proceed with caution. He led two rounds of hearts, discarding two diamonds. The third round of hearts was ruffed with a small trump in the closed hand and then the Ace of diamonds was laid down and the second round of diamonds trumped in the Dummy. Now East led two rounds of trumps, retaining the lead in the Dummy and led the fourth round of hearts, which he trumped with the King. There was only one trump outstanding and this was then drawn as the contract was assured when both North and South followed to the fourth round of hearts. East re-entered Dummy by means of the club, discarded his last diamond on the established heart and conceded the last trick to North's Queen of clubs.

The line of play, had South opened a trump originally, would have been no less interesting. The hand is one that well repays study.

TODAY'S POINTER.
The Responding Hand.

Partner of the Opening Hand is called the Responding Hand. In the Forcing System the Responding Hand, far from merely assisting, is in most cases the principal hand and carries the brunt of bidding. As a rule the game or Slam value of the Opening Hand is relative and depends upon the distribution and balance of honor strength in the Responding Hand. Accordingly the whole scheme of Contract bidding is so designed that the Opening Hand, whose first bid is necessarily a leap in the dark, "approaches" with low bids and feels out the situation before definitely choosing the attacking or defending direction.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

"This is the finest generation of young people the world has ever known," said a clergyman the other day, and he ought to know, for he has five daughters and several sons and he lives on the edge of a college campus which means that the boys are in and out of his house all hours of the day and night; boys and girls together.

In this day and time, when it is the fashion to refer bitterly to the revolt of youth and when it is the custom to sigh and to cry over the irreverence of youth and its utter indifference to the standards of life and love that the older generation revered and accepted, it is refreshing to hear this pronouncement from the lips of one who has one hand on the pulse of youth and the other on the pulpit, particularly as it applies to the relation between the sexes.

Certain it is that the youth of today disregards many of the laws that the former generation counted inviolable. That doesn't mean that they haven't substituted others in many cases quite as good and more practical. And why shouldn't they write their own code, as other generations wrote theirs? The modern youth will light a cigarette when he is walking down the street with his best girl, an outrageous piece of effrontery in the old days to any respectable woman! That act doesn't remotely touch his respect for that girl. He has simply thrown into the discard another of the useless appendages to the old code of manners. These youths are not less kind and considerate, but in a different way.

All said and done, we have witnessed a revolution of thought and behavior on the part of our young generation. I believe the thing that is going to justify it in the minds of the critics is the salutary effect that the new and wholesome intercourse between the boys and the girls is going to have on marriage. They are bound in by common interests. They have engaged in sports together. They have come together in a full and free companionship that they have never enjoyed to such a great extent. They are being educated in schools of the same standards and of the same curricula. Even those who do not have the advantage of a college education have a taste of all college gives, in high school. They have intellectual and athletic and social intercourse in a sense that they have never had it before. The high school these days has its basket ball teams, its football teams, its track teams, and all of these sports bring the young people together in gala events and holiday excursions, as well as clubs and sororities and literary societies.

Why shouldn't this generation of young people be the best the world has ever seen? They have had more done for them than any other. They have had more opportunities of their own, and others' making, they have had more fun, more diversion, more exercise, more physical supervision, more educational advantages, more intellectual spurs, and more community of interests, the boys with the girls.

There is a glorious quality about youth that we all love, and admire, and envy. Its enthusiasm, its tireless energy, its unbounded interest, and its resilience. Because we lose all these qualities as we grow older it is difficult for us to retain our sympathy with those who have them unless we are in constant touch with young people in our own homes and unless we have kept enough of our youth to merit their confidence and their friendship. Whether we approve or disapprove the change that has come in their relation to each other, we must admit there are vast possibilities for good in it, as regards marriage.

PUMA HAS HIS PICTURE TAKEN.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Some, 'twould seem, know not their might
And so they suffer needless fright.
—Old Mother Nature.

Why had Puma the Mountain Lion run from those two barking Dogs? It would be hard to say. Had he chosen to turn and fight he could have killed those dogs easily.

Anyway, those two dogs had treed Puma. At first he da felt safe, for he knew those dogs could not climb. Now, however, he didn't feel so safe, for here were three of those hated two-legged creatures whom he feared. He could have come down and fought his way clear, but he was to cowardly to do this.

"I wish I could get a good photograph of that fellow," sighed he. "He is so high up that he will nto show very well in a picture."

"Then, why don't you go up and get a fairly close picture?" asked Stumpy, winging at Cousin Tim.

"No, thank you," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "He may be afraid of dogs, but I'm no dog, and I am afraid he wouldn't have so much respect for me. You go up and make the pictures." He held his camera out to Stumpy.

"Don't know how," replied Stumpy promptly. "Never did know how to handle one of those things. Tell you what, there is another tree alongside that one and an easy one to climb. You climb that one until you get right opposite to Mr. Cat and then ask him to look pleasant. I'll have my gun ready if he takes a notion to be unpleasant about it. What do you say?"

"All right," said he. "I'll do it." He moved toward the tree and neither Stumpy nor Cousin Tom said a word. "One of you come give me a boost and help me get started," said he at the foot of the tree. His camera was held by a strap over one shoulder. Stumpy came forward and boosted him up and he managed to bet hold of some stubs. Then he began to climb, and inside he was hoping to hear Stumpy or Cousin Tom order him to stop.

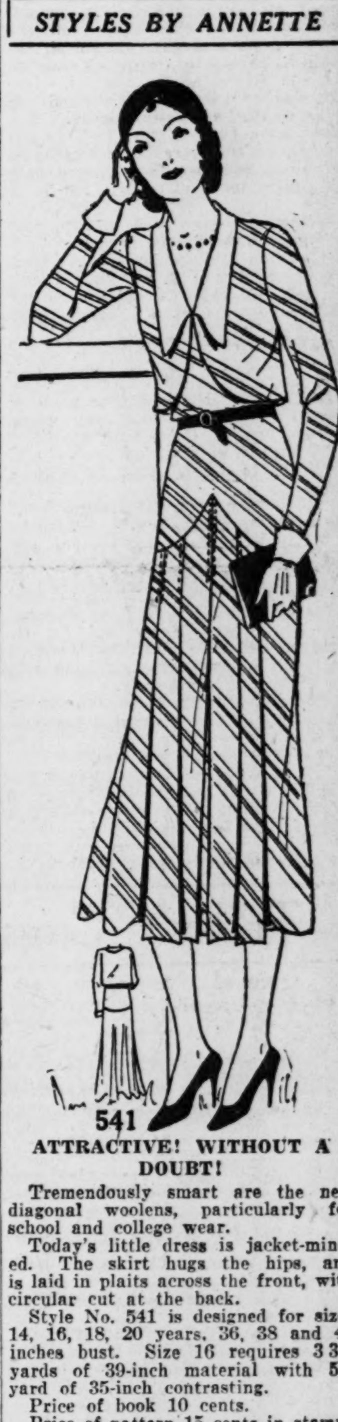

Instead Stumpy told him to go slowly and take it easy, making no sudden motions. As he got up near the level of the branch of the other tree on which Puma was crouched the latter began to get uneasy. His long tail twitched and he kept looking around as if for a place to jump.

Picture after picture he made until he had used all his film. Puma had quieted down. Apparently he sensed that this two-legged creature in the next tree was harmless. Somehow Puma no longer looked like the terrible animal he had always thought him to be. He seemed more and more like nothing but an overgrown, good-natured cot in trouble and wondering what it was all about.

Flower of Thorns

By Marie Conway Oemler

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

"Good-by, then, Sally. And if . . . you have to condemn me . . . remember, I love you," he told her.

She did not answer, but waited for him to leave her. He lingered a moment more, looking at her imploringly. But she, outraged, humiliated, tingling with shame and rage, averted her gaze to avoid his. With lowered head, the red mark visible on his forehead, he walked out of the greenhouse and make his way to his waiting car. He gathered a handful of bright foliage alongside the road, presently. He would explain to Gertrude that while he was gathering them for her beside a ditch his foot slipped and he struck his head on the fence rail on the other side of the ditch.

Young Mrs. Winstead liked to visit the two schools on the place, one for the white and one for colored children, and the small hospital with its separate wards. There was, too, a library, well patronized; and a small negro church. The Winstead employes were particularly well looked after.

Henry took a keen interest in Sam's people and on Sunday afternoons and holidays it was his custom to visit them in person. Lately he had taken Sally with him—this would be part of her work, he told her seriously. She drove him in her small car, and this pleased Henry.

It was upon these visits of his that his daughter-in-law really learned to know Henry. His quiet, unobtrusive charity made her feel humble. Whatever complaint there might be, Henry heard in person and adjusted Whenever help was needed Henry saw that it was forthcoming. One of these people told him of the tenant family who had lately moved to the country and were then living in a tumble-down shack behind a clump of trees at the end of a small crooked lane. Terribly poor, they were, his informant said, with a crowd of naked, hungry, barefooted children.

Sally was with Henry the first time he went to that forlorn house—the mere shell of a shack. Two starved hounds rushed out to bark and snarl at the car, while a barefooted, thin woman in a soiled and faded calico dress came to the crazy door and stared at them listlessly. Several children, of all ages and conditions of nakedness and dirt, uncombed, unwashed, barefooted, crowded around her and stared at the visitors. One girl, maybe 14 or so, with tangled fair hair, stared at Sally avidly. She might have been a good looking girl enough, under favorable circumstances but as it was her face showed only the dulling touch of poverty and ignorance.

Henry questioned the woman, who answered him stolidly enough. "No, suh, Paw warn't workin'. They warn't no work he c'd git. Didn't any of the children attend school? Shucks, how'd she send 'em in them clo'es—which was all they had?"

"That is very unfortunate!" said Henry mildly. "Of course you couldn't send them to school without clothes. I can quite understand your point of view. Suppose, however, you would let me furnish them with clothes?"

"What'd you give 'em clo's fur?"

"Why, to wear," said he with a smile.

"Well, they sure Gawd needs 'em," she admitted grudgingly.

"That is why I suggest that you allow me to supply them, my good woman," he said patiently.

"Who air you callin' yore good woman? I ain't yore good woman! I'm Minta May Mears, an' I'm th' legal wedded wife o' Rufus Mears, I am, an' I'd like to have yo' know it!" she exclaimed indignantly.

"No offense, Mrs. Mears, no offense at all!" said Henry, good humoredly. "I didn't know your name until you told me. What do you require?"

"Me? Well, suh, whilst I'm at hit, I might's well tell yo' I'm wantin' a caliker wrapper, 'n a whole shift 'n a pair o' shoes 'n stockin's."

While she was speaking, Paw came lounging up—dirty, idle, shiftless.

"Who's them?" he asked, jerking his thumb at the visitors.

"Hit's some rich folks what come to see us." "He," she pointed her finger at Henry—"aims to get some clo'es for the children. All of 'em."

"You aimin' to get them pore children some clo'es, Mister?" Paw addressed the visitor. Henry admitted that such was his intention.

"Well, suh, tain't no more'n right. You oughta, you're rich, I'm pore. I ain't got nothin' an' I can't git nothin,' nohow."

"I am sorry. If you really want work, Mr. Mears, call at the Winstead dairy and ask for Mr. Dixon. I think he can find something to do."

"I knowed hit, Maw," said the poor man, resignedly. "You wuz thinkin' yo' wuz goin' to get some clo'es fer them children fer nothin'? No ma'am, you hain't. I got to slave fer 'em! He's aimin' to have my blood for 'em!"

"Not at all!" said Henry hastily. "But you want work, don't you?"

"Sure I duz. But I hain't aimin' to be driv, I hain't."

"You won't be driven," Henry told him patiently.

"When you' 'speck me to come?" asked Paw suspiciously.

"You might come over tomorrow morning. Ask for Mr. Dixon."

"I'll come—but I hain't expectin' nothin' better'n workin' like a nigger," said Paw unpleasantly. Sally looked at him with curiosity. The type was new to her. She thought him the most disagreeable mortal she had ever seen.

Henry turned to the woman for further details regarding the children's needs, which were furnished him volubly. Sally made necessary notes.

"Please'm, could you make my dress pink?" asked the oldest girl, timidly.

"Sure I can. How old are you, child?"

"Her name's Minta May, same's mine. An' far's I c'n reckon she's goin' on 15, or maybe it's 14. I hain't rememberin' which."

"I asked because I wish to know what size dress I should get," explained Sally, and put down '15' in her note book. "You must give the ages of the other children, please."

The legal, lawful wedded wife of Mr. Mears racked her brains and gave their ages as nearly as she could remember them. She suggested certain articles that she thought she herself most required, and added two blue shirts for Paw. Then her visitors rose to go, and she graciously accompanied them to where the gate should have been.

"O, father! What perfectly frightful people! The worst people I ever saw! And so ungrateful. Why should you do anything for such wretches?"

"But those poor brats really need the clothes, my dear. And we've got to see that they are sent to school," said Henry. "They are not responsible for their parents, poor little things. Something must be done for those children. That oldest child, if you noticed, isn't half bad. I imagine she might be a nice child if she were properly clothed and trained."

"And what is to be done for that terrible man?" she wondered.

"I'll see Dixon about it. I think we can manage to find something for him to do," said Henry kindly. He expressed neither impatience nor disgust. He seemed to understand. Sally looked at him wonderingly. The Winsteads still had power to surprise her.

The children got the clothes they needed. Joe Dixon grumbled, but found Mr. Mears some unskilled labor. The shack had been repaired, some decencies added, and the oldest girl, Minta May, was presently sent to school, greatly to her parent's discontent. The younger children were to follow suit.

Sally went about with Henry on Sundays and such holidays as she had. She stuck to her post with Joe, and McFarland still helped her with the roses. No longer could she complain that her hands were empty, that she had no real work to do! But that one question persisted: What was she goinng to do about Sam?

Sally said to Henry one night at dinner.

Over $130,000.00 Paid to The Atlanta Constitution Subscribers During the Past Few Years Through Its Insurance Service Department---

The Greatest Service Rendered by Any Newspaper in the South

This insurance is for both old and new subscribers and members of subscribers' families between the ages of 15 and 68. If you are not a subscriber, now is the time to subscribe and secure this protection. Do it today! Do not wait until tomorrow. It is the man who puts off until tomorrow who leaves want as his heritage to his family and loved ones.

Do not put off taking advantage of this great protection for such a small registration fee. You, or some member of your family may be killed or crippled in an accident today. Destiny may not let you avoid tragedy. For a small registration fee of only $1.00 (less than one-third of a cent per day, or less than 2c per week) The Constitution offers to its subscribers this protection. See further details below on this page.

On Saturday afternoon, May 2nd, 1931, Mr. C. D. Lifsey and Mrs. C. D. Lifsey, his wife, left Atlanta with a party of friends for a week-end visit to relatives in Chattanooga. On their way, at some distance north of Marietta, their automobile crashed into an incoming truck on a sharp curve, which caused their death. They were both holders of travel and pedestrian accident insurance through The Atlanta Constitution's insurance feature service. Facsimile of checks below shows the amount paid on each death claim.

Special Notice to Our Subscribers: When you go autoing usually the entire family goes. Are we right? If an accident happens the entire family is likely to be injured or killed. Why, then, would it not pay to have your entire family protected—all those between the ages of 15 and 68, especially since it costs only $1.00 per year per policy to get the same kind of protection as referred to in some of the claim payments above. While during the past several years over $130,000.00 has been paid out to Atlanta Constitution subscribers, if all of our subscribers during this time that have happened to accidents that caused either death or disability had been insured, the amount paid out would possibly be ten times this amount, as only about one-tenth of our subscribers have been covered. Are you among the 10% that are covered, or the 90% not covered?

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE MANY BENEFITS

Pays $10,000.00

For loss of life by the wrecking or disablement of a railroad passenger car or street, elevated or underground railway car, passenger steamship or steam boat, in or on which insured is traveling as a fare-paying passenger as specified in Part I of policy.

Pays $2,500.00

For loss of life by wrecking of public omnibus, taxicab, auto stage which is being driven or operated at the time of such wrecking or disablement by a licensed driver, plying for public hire and in which the insured is traveling as a fare-paying passenger or by the wrecking or disablement of a passenger elevator, hands, feet or sight as specified in Part II of policy.

Pays $1,000.00

For loss of life by wrecking of a private automobile or private horse drawn vehicle of the exclusively pleasure type as provided in policy, by being struck or knocked down while walking or standing on a public highway by a moving vehicle (as set forth in policy), or being struck by lightning, cyclone or tornado, collapse of outer walls of building, in the burning of any church, theater, library, school or municipal building, feet or sight, as specified in Part IV of policy.

Pays $20.00 Weekly

For injuries sustained in any manner specified in Part I or II, which shall not prove fatal or cause specific loss as aforesaid but shall immediately, continuously and wholly and prevent the insured from performing each and every duty pertaining to any and every kind of business (as specified in the policy) but not exceeding 15 consecutive weeks.

Pays $10.00 Weekly

For injuries sustained in any manner specified in Part IV, which shall not prove fatal or cause specific loss as aforesaid, but shall immediately, continuously and wholly prevent the insured from performing each and every duty pertaining to any and every kind of business (as specified in the policy) but not exceeding 15 consecutive weeks.

Hospital Benefits

If a bodily injury for which a weekly indemnity is payable under this policy, is suffered by the insured, and if on account of said bodily injury the insured is removed to a regularly incorporated hospital, the Company will pay the insured (in addition to the said weekly indemnity) for a period not exceeding five weeks, $7.50 per week.

OVER $130,000.00

Paid to Constitution subscribers during the past several years by the North American Accident Insurance Co. The greatest service rendered by any newspaper in the entire South.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Austin Brothers Bridge Company Completes Two Huge New Spans

Austin Brothers Bridge Company reports, through the executive offices here, that it has completed two of the three large bridges in the south.

The largest of the three is across the Dan river in Rockingham, N. C., and is over 1,000 feet long. This bridge is at Madison on Route 49 and is about 40 miles northeast of Winston-Salem and about the same distance northeast of Greensboro. It eliminates the only bad spot on the beautiful scenic route between these two cities, and Roanoke, Natural Bridge and the caverns in the Shenandoah valley.

This big bridge, while it has been open but a few weeks, has increased traffic many times over what it was when the Dan river, at Madison, had to be crossed at a ford.

The second bridge, just finished, is 960 feet long and is across the Roanoke river at the historic Roanoke rapids between Halifax and Hampton counties, in the northeastern part of North Carolina. This bridge eliminates a ferry crossing that was considered dangerous.

The completion of the bridge, which is on the direct route between Raleigh and Richmond, and is a unit of the Coastal highway, will be good news to thousands who travel back and forth from points in the south Atlantic states, as it eliminates the worst spot between Atlanta territory and Florida points on the most direct and favored route to Washington and New York.

The third bridge being built by Austin Brothers is across the Suwanee river at Suwanee Springs, Fla., and is about midway between Jasper and Live Oak. This bridge will be completed about September 1 and will be of great convenience to the people of two live little cities. And it will give the people of the Jasper section a more direct and all-the-year-around good road to the west Florida and gulf points.

Austin Brothers have just recently started work upon three units of a group of five bridges on the Satilla river marsh lands, in the lower end of Wayne county. These five bridges are on the Brunswick-Waycross highway. While there is a new bridge across the Satilla river, these five short bridges were voted when it was shown that in rainy weather further up the river, and its tributaries, a greater volume of water would be held back by the present new roadway than the river proper could carry away. It was pointed out also that the impounding of a great volume of water would exert a tremendous pressure against the present road and large sections of it might be washed out at any time.

These five units will be located at channel points and will be more in the nature as safety valves to prevent the possible loss of lives and long stretches of road, rather than bridges of crossing.

Austin Brothers Bridge Company is one of the largest fabricators of structural steel in this section of the country. It has a large, well equipped plant opposite Fort McPherson, where a large force of expert workers is employed.

In addition to the large main plant the company has a large auxiliary ornamental shop adjoining on Mickelberry avenue, where every kind of twisted, turned, welded, riveted or bolted ornamental iron object, from one weighing but a few ounces to one weighing several tons can be made.

GATE CITY MATTRESS REPORTS BIG SEASON

The Gate City Mattress Company reports it has had the best mid-summer business in renovating and making new cotton mattresses, making over old feather beds into new style convertible feather beds, sterilizing and making over feather pillows, as well as making inner spring felt mattresses out of ordinary cotton mattresses.

This firm is busy at this time with a full force of workmen renovating about every kind of mattress made. The company can make over a mattress in quick time and can return the old mattress, made to look like a new one, in a few hours.

Much of the success the Gate City Mattress Company enjoys is due to its line of new tickings. This enables the company to offer a nice variety of the newest and prettiest designs in fancy coverings, as well as in the old standard tickings.

The Gate City Mattress Company renovates feather mattresses. First the feathers are cleaned, by turning hot steam on them while they are being whirled around in a large cylinder drum. The clean feathers are put in a new ticking, then sewed all the way across the mattress. The topside of the ticking is sewed to the bottom side about every eight inches and this keeps the feathers in place.

This firm is having exceptional success with its new inner spring.

The proprietor, Paul G. Hornbuckle, has been making and renovating mattresses in Atlanta for more than 15 years and lays much of the success and steady growth of his business to the fact that satisfied customers recommend the firm highly to their friends.

WORLD DELEGATES SEEK BUSINESS AID

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Efforts to find a way out of the world's present economic situation were made by some 200 economists, industrialists, labor leaders and government officials, representing 20 countries, who met in a world social economic congress here today.

Among the delegates were 35 from the United States, 25 from Great Britain, 37 from Germany and 6 from soviet Russia, representing various grades of industrial management, organized labor, social scientists and economists.

Opening the congress, C. H. Van Der Leeuw, its president, said it was the first opportunity to discuss the world's difficulties without the restraint of diplomatic language, official connections or organization affiliations.

SUTTON SHOE COMPANY EMPLOYS NEW EXPERT

The Sutton Shoe Repairing Company, of 11 Edgewood avenue, is giving customers at this time the biggest dollar value since the firm began business many years ago. S. J. Bethune, manager, explains this by saying that with the addition of still more improved equipment and the acquisition of a former superintendent of midwest shoe factories to the already good organization, he can do the best of shoe repairing cheaper and faster than heretofore.

This company uses the three-way system of furnishing the different grades of leathers. This enables customers to fix the price they wish to pay for resoling shoes. The customers, under this plan, can select the best grades of leather for the shoes they paid the most for, or pay a little less for medium grade shoes or a very small price for cheap shoes or old shoes they ordinarily would not want to spend much on having repaired.

The Penn-Standard process of vulcanizing a sole on a shoe as done by Sutton, is regarded as the last word in shoe rebuilding. In addition to good looks the advantage in this method of repairing lies in the fact that the same "broke in" shape the wearer earned in making the shoes feel comfortable is retained and the repaired shoes have that comfortable feeling of the old shoes and at the same time present all the appearances of being new.

While the soles put on by the Penn-Standard method do not have any nails or stiches, Sutton guarantees them to last the life of the ordinary shoe job.

Mr. Bethune stresses the fact that a service that fits all customers' needs is his motto. Where the wearer wants the shoes he or she is wearing repaired while they wait, the job can be done in a few minutes.

Sutton is also a favorable place for athletes of all kinds to have their shoe repair work done.

COTTON GOODS SALES SHOW GAIN IN WEEK

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Commencing the middle of July, each week's sales with us have shown a slight gain over the previous week's. Though last week's gain over the previous two week's is not large, it is quite striking that there should be any gain at all as we are still in a waiting market.

Realizing that we are in a waiting market and the possibility that the trade may not be ready to begin to operate in a large way before Labor Day, selling agents, taking into consideration the strong spot situation on print cloths and certain other lines, have recommended the maintenance of a steady market in the interim and their efforts in that direction appear to us intelligent, praiseworthy and deserving of some consideration from the trade.

We do not see any reason for changing our minds in the slightest regarding September-October business. We are looking for a large volume, especially as the cotton situation has held back a fair part of this buying which, under normal conditions, would have already been placed by this time.

The feature of our business this week was the volume on some of the Osnaburgs and coarse sheetings for the manufacturing trades where sales were much in excess of production. There was moderate activity in print cloths and fair activity in bag trade sheetings.—Hunter & Company.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Arab population throughout Palestine went on a general strike today. The strike was called as a protest against the government supplying outlying Jewish settlements with sealed armories.

Petroleum Demand Increase Seen for Remainder of Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—An increase in the demand for petroleum during the remainder of the year was predicted today by a volunteer advisory economic committee in a report to Chairman Wilbur of the oil conservation board.

Coming in the midst of martial law in Texas and Oklahoma to curb the flow of crude oil to a saturated market, the committee's report was considered of great importance as a chart to help guide the industry toward stability by holding supply to demand.

The report reviewed trends since April 6, showing a reduction of 45,000,000 barrels between January 1 and July 1 as compared with the same period last year, and extending its survey to December 31 instead of September 30.

Crude oil demand for the last half of this year was estimated at 491,315,000 against 477,829,000 for the same period in 1930, with 451,915,000 barrels to come from domestic fields and 25,239,000 from foreign wells. Domestic crude totaled 430,239,000 and foreign crude 30,999,000 barrels in the last half of 1930.

Motor fuel imports were expected to handle 538,000 barrels to a total of 8,231,000 as compared with 8,769,000 during the second half of 1930. An increase in shipments of east Texas crude to foreign points for refining and re-export to the United States as foreign gasoline was predicted.

A reduction of 45,000,000 barrels in crude production during the first half of 1931 was noted by the committee, which said California, with a decline of 23,000,000 barrels, was the largest contributor to the reduction, followed by Oklahoma, which cut 16,500,000.

A decrease of approximately 31,000,000 barrels in Texas, the committee said, was offset by the east Texas fields, which produced 31,399,000 barrels, leaving the state's totals for 1931 and 1930 virtually unchanged, as the east Texas area was not producing in 1930.

E. B. Swanson, chief economist of the petroleum economics division of the bureau of mines, was chairman of the committee. Other members were John W. Frey, bureau of foreign and domestic commerce; Martin Van Couvering, Los Angeles; Alfred G. White, national industrial conference board, New York; Howard Bennette, Western Petroleum Refiners' Association.

Much of the significance attached to the estimates was based upon a preliminary report submitted by the committee April 16, which anticipated a demand for 119,732,000 barrels in April, May and June. During the three months, the actual demand totaled 119,935,000 barrels.

Demand for motor fuel the committee estimated, will increase 1.27 per cent in the third quarter of this year, as compared with the corresponding period in 1930, and 5 per cent in the final quarter of 1931.

HIGHLIGHTS OF WALL STREET

By CHARLES W. STORM,
Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Decline of the general stock market late last week dissipated much of the bullish enthusiasm generated by the aggressive operations of the big group that had been trying to lift the general list by aggressive buying of stocks for the last fortnight.

The fact that prices receded sharply on Friday in the face of the strenuous efforts being made by the bull operators chilled their enthusiasm and expectations, although they will continue to adhere to the long side, believing that liquidation has been about completed and that the market, based on its strong technical position alone, should show an advancing tendency.

Renewed selling and heaviness of the market, however, was due to developments over which the big bull operators had no control. Confidence in an upward movement was first badly shaken when bank failures were announced in Toledo. Other small bank closings subsequently announced also contributed to reducing the morale of the general public, whom the big bulls were hoping to induce into the market.

There was also some real liquidation on Friday due to the selling of stocks by some wealthy individuals who are reported to have raised a large sum of money in an effort to bolster up a certain banking condition, reports of which have been in circulation for weeks. This situation is now understood to have been so materially strengthened as to obviate any thought of trouble.

TRADE IMPROVEMENT EXPECTED.

One of the main influences making for stabilization of the market at present levels is the general expectation that seasonal fall improvement in general business should shortly begin. Many potential buyers of stocks are waiting for expansion in business before making purchases. No signs of improvement in trade have come to hand the last week but they are confidently predicted with the beginning of next month.

The fact, however, that there is agitation in the steel industry for a reduction in wages leads the Street to believe that the steel manufacturers do not look for any improvement in their business in the immediate future. The reduction in steel operations at Youngstown announced the last week also tended to lend color to this thought.

The general market the last week had much to contend with that was unfavorable and the fate that it did not show more pronounced weakness than it did is considered an indication that liquiation had been very thorough. The unprecedented small amount of stocks being carried on margin in brokerage houses also shows the extent to which liquidation has gone.

STEEL MEETING.

Considerable attention will be paid to happenings on Tuesday at the regular monthly meeting of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation. Notwithstanding denials the Street persists in believing that some announcement with regard to a reduction in steel wages will be made following this meeting. Announcement of reduction in the wages of steel workers, according to views expressed in the financial district, will be the signal for reductions for workers in other important industries.

While reductions in wages will at least temporarily curtail the purchasing power of workers, the smaller pay rolls will enable the big manufacturing corporations to reduce the cost of operations and thus show increased net profits and this in the last analysis is bullish on stocks. Reduced wages will also permit manufacturers to reduce prices and thus stimulate an inquiry for their products.

The contention in the Street is that liquidation of labor is necessary to complete the cycle of general deflation. It is claimed that industry will then be on a more solid foundation from which to begin improvement.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON YIELDS MORE GROUND

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Trading in the cotton market has been fairly active during the past week and prices made new low levels for the season as well as for the calendar year. The October option dropped on Wednesday to 6.59, the lowest price recorded in 30 years or more.

Probably the main incentive toward lower levels was the weakness in foreign markets and the failure of any of the three tropical storms reported in far southern waters to reach the cotton region was a strong contributing influence. Weakness in stocks and generally favorable weather in the belt further helped the decline.

There was more or less hedge selling during the week and traders are manifesting some anxiety as to how the hedges will be absorbed when they reach considerable proportions as the crop movement increases. Traders are already beginning to speculate as to whether or not the government will reduce its last estimate when the next report is issued in September. More or less deterioration is admitted in the eastern half of the belt, but it is claimed that this has been offset by the favorable progress of the crop in the west.

The census bureau will issue a report on Monday showing the total ginnings to August 15. It is expected to be bullish.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Last Year
Oct.	7.05	6.59	6.86	10.96
Dec.	7.26	6.81	7.08	11.13
Jan.	7.35	6.93	7.17	11.23
Mar.	7.55	7.08	7.37	11.31

CROSSING FATALITIES INCREASE OVER 1930

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Reports filed by railroads with the interstate commerce commission made public today showed increases in the number of highway grade crossing fatalities for the first five months of this year as compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

Fatalities totaled 828 in the first five months of this year, an increase of 20 over 1930. Those injured number 2,100, a reduction of 226 compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

Highway grade crossing accidents numbered 1,831 in 1931 against 2,009 last year.

WEAKNESS OF RAILS UNSETTLES BOND LIST

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The persistent decline in railway issues was the most significant development of the bond market last week.

The average price of ten leading issues declined to new low levels for the year or longer, and a large number of rail bonds closed the week at the lowest prices in years. The underlying causes of this movement are not hard to find. The unsatisfactory earnings of the railroads have been recognized for months. The threat of this factor extends to the standing of rail issues as legal investments for savings banks, a consideration which tends to keep rail bonds steady firm in prosperous times. As the margin of earnings over fixed charges decreases the time approaches when the bonds lose their legal investment standing and no longer are eligible for institutional buying.

Consequently there is the prospect of an important market for these issues being lost.

Another consideration is the outcome of the carriers' petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. The approval of the petition would at least encourage the hope of early increases in revenues, but recent hearings before the interstate commerce commission have indicated that powerful groups of shippers of the country are strongly opposed to increased rates.

Corporate bonds generally were lower, although the decline in the rest of the list was not so marked as in the rails. The average price of 30 leading bonds, composed of 10 issues each of rail, public utility and industrial issues reached a record low level for the movement, nevertheless. Poor corporate earnings have exerted and are still exerting their influence. Ultra-high-grade loans are selling at or very near their record high prices.

The result of the offerings of treasury securities on or about August 31, announced in a preliminary way on Saturday by the federal reserve banks, will furnish further evidence of their aspect of the market.

Offerings of new securities during the week totaled only $8,446,000, compared with $71,699,041 the previous week. The character of the offerings in both periods is of greater significance than the amounts. The former amount might be regarded as an evidence of midsummer dullness but the character of the new issues clearly reflects the concentration of demand on high-grade bonds.

Wall Street Briefs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—New state and municipal financing scheduled this week comprises the offerings of 50 communities and will aggregate only $8,482,296, a new weekly low figure for the year to date, the Bond Buyer reports. The total brings the weekly average for the year to date down to $38,810,971.

An issue of $5,000,000 Interstate Power Company of Delaware first mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds, due 1957, is expected to be offered this week by a syndicate headed by the Chase-Harris-Forbes Corporation. It is understood that of this offering only $1,000,000 represents new financing by the company, the proceeds of which will be used to reimburse the company in part for extensions and additions made to the properties of the system and for other corporate purposes.

Sales of Perfect Circle piston rings for replacement purposes are reported to have registered a gain of 80 per cent in July over the like month of 1930, the largest gain made during any one month this year over a corresponding month of the previous year.

During the first six months, revenues of manufactured and natural gas utilities declined 3.7 per cent, while gas sales dropped 7.1 per cent, as compared with the first half of 1930, according to reports to the statistical department of the American Gas Association from companies serving 13,659,000 customers and comprising nearly 90 per cent of the gas utility industry.

Planning for Autumn Trade Goes Forward Cautiously

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Business has drifted close to the end of the vacation season with preparations for the autumn trade season going forward with a considerable degree of caution.

The lack of more tangible signs of the seasonal upswing has been deplored by some observers, although sudden changes infrequently appear at this season, and were not apparent a year ago at this time.

The most encouraging development of the past week has been the spectacular stemming of wasteful production of crude oil from the east Texas field. There has been a swift appreciation in crude oil values, inspiring both envy and hope in the hearts of other raw material producers who are letting their products go at prices well below costs.

A sudden recovery in commodity prices generally at the bottom of a period of depression would be contrary to historical precedent. The upturn in commodity prices usually has lagged several months behind revival in industry and trade. However, the fact that so many materials are now quoted below the costs of producing them makes the present situation unusual.

The wheat market has been steadied by reports of deterioration of the Canadian crop, and unfavorable weather in Europe. News that the farm board had arranged to trade 25,000,000 bushels of its holdings, or roughly 10 per cent, for Brazilian coffee, was received with mixed feelings.

Cotton was under considerable pressure, and again recorded new low levels for several years. The drastic decline in this commodity has had an unsettling influence on cotton textiles, but the wool market remained active, and woolen mills continue to operate at the best levels in some time. The shoe-makers also are maintaining their high rate of activity, but the leather market has been adversely affected by price uncertainties arising from a decline in prices in Argentina.

Retail trade, as the summer wears to its close, is still dominated by clearance sales. Such fall showings of merchandise as have been made are reported as having attracted a fare degree of interest. Wholesalers still complain of spotty business and buyers' caution in laying in stocks.

The steel industry continues, as it has in recent weeks, to fluctuate between 30 and 32 per cent of capacity, coming back to the higher level this week. A little better inquiry from the automobile makers has appeared during the week, and heavy construction projects remain a sustaining factor. Rumors of discussions of wage reductions, however, have been interpreted in some quarters as indicating that only limited recovery is still held in check by seasonal influences and plans for new models, several of which are expected to appear around November 1.

The weekly freight car loadings figures disclosed the substantial decline of more than 20,000 cars, in contrast to a tendency to turn upward at this period in previous years. Electric power consumption still fails to make the encouraging showing of July. Output is now running about 3 per cent under last year.

The foreign trade figures for July showed only a slight shrinkage from June, which was regarded as encouraging in view of the extreme unsettlement in central Europe.

CURB PRICE CHANGES HOLD IN NARROW AREA

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Speculative interest in curb stocks last week was focused largely on the oils and public utilities.

The former made good gains during the early part of the week, but profit-taking toward the close of the week cancelled many of them. The upward movement was based on the assumption that the program curtailment of production enforced by the governors of Oklahoma and Texas marked a turn for the better in the petroleum industry. As the week advanced there was greater disposition to await more definite developments in the situation.

Public utility stocks contributed more to the volume than any other group. They moved ahead, also, until the latter part of the week when profit-taking was sufficient to cancel the gains of some of them and the downward movement thus generated carried others below the closing prices a week earlier.

For the most part trading was dull. On several occasions the quotation tape was motionless for minutes at a time.

There was no doubt of the trend of the market for the week as a whole, however. The favorite issues were alternately strong or reactionary but the great bulk of issues dealt in more or less infrequently were generally lower. This was not surprising in view of the lack of developments which could be considered bullish in any broad sense.

Stocks which are closely held normally have wider fluctuations than active issues. Prices of the latter are able to adjust themselves to events as they occur but the price changes of the closely held stocks often represent a sort of catching up process with events between sales.

Trading in Vacuum Oil was discontinued incident to the merger of that company with Standard Oil of New York, an event which will further restrict curb trading. Stock of the merged company has been transferred to the stock exchange.

WOODRING REVEALS OFFER OF $1 FOR OIL

Kansas Governor Declines To Reveal Name of Firm Making Bid.

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Success in a mid-continent area effort to obtain a dollar a barrel for petroleum, through an arbitrary shutdown of production, was indicated today when Governor Harry H. Woodring said a major purchasing company had offered to raise its price to that amount.

Governor Woodring declined to reveal the name of the company, but said there was a possibility that an order of the Kansas public service commission, declaring a shutdown tomorrow of the Ritz-Canton oil pool production, might be withdrawn, at least temporarily.

Yesterday, in connection with announcement of the Ritz-Canton order, Governor Woodring said he was in "complete accord" with the governors of Texas and Oklahoma, who have declared martial law to enforce a complete shutdown of certain oil areas.

Governor W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, who first called out the military in Oklahoma, announced he would enforce his order until oil reached a dollar a barrel. Petroleum then was selling for as little as 10 cents a barrel in the mid-continent territory.

Governor Woodring said today that the unnamed company offering to pay the dollar quotation was negotiating with other major purchasers to determine whether they should meet the price.

Germany Attacked For Aiding Chiang

CANTON, China, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Canton kuomingtang (people's party) called a mass meeting today to "take steps against Germany on the ground of supplying Chiang Kai-shek, president of the Nanking government, with war materials and also over 100 German advisers."

The kuomingtang said it was informed Chiang's advisers were instructing his military in the use of poison gas.

Acting upon the advice of Lin Sen, national kuomingtang supervisor and signatory of the document impeaching Chiang Kai-shek, which started the rebellion against Nanking, officials of the southern government said today the national party congress for the election of officers will not convene in Canton next October as previously planned.

The Canton government, instead, is endeavoring to secure peace and a settlement with Nanking so a party congress representing the entire country can convene October 10 in some city yet to be designated.

DRY ISSUE BARRED BY VIRGINIA LEGION

CLIFTON FORGE, Va., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Advance arrival and registration this afternoon of more than 400 gave promise of a record attendance at the annual convention of the Virginia department, American Legion, which opens tomorrow morning.

State Commander Roby C. Thompson said today that he would rule out of order any discussion of prohibition on the convention floor.

Irene Castle's Horse Will Not Be Destroyed

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Oak Ridge, the 16-year-old horse that recently threw Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, causing her to break a wrist will not be destroyed.

In a statement today denying reports that she intended having the horse put to death, Mrs. McLaughlin said:

"I've been getting an average of eight letters a day from persons who got the idea that I would have the horse shot. Or course, I haven't the slightest idea of that.

"Oak Ridge is getting pretty old and his knees are undoubtedly weak. We have pulled his shoes off and put him out to pasture where he will stay indefinitely."

DO-X Will Resume N. Y. Flight Tuesday

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 23.—(UP)—Officers of the DO-X decided today to start the giant flying boat toward New York about 8 a. m., Tuesday.

Passengers and crew were entertained today at a civic reception after which 700 person went out in launches to view the DO-X lying a mile and a quarter off shore.

If weather is favorable, officers of the craft expect to reach Charleston, S. C., late Tuesday and arrive in New York some time Thursday.

Three American League Clubs Lose Mathematical Chances To Win

MACKMEN HAVE BEST AVERAGE FOR PAST WEEK

The end of mathematical chances of winning major league pennants in the two big circuits came for two teams which were on the losing end of last week's battles, and for one which acquitted itself well in the seven days ending Saturday. Another club, the Cincinnati Reds, is left almost without hope, having no better possibility than to tie the St. Louis Cardinals by winning every game remaining while the Cards lose every one.

The Detroit Tigers won five of their seven games last week to finish second in the American league for the seven days, but their previous defeats, coupled with Philadelphia's steady winning, ended Detroit's chance of finishing ahead of the Athletics.

Philadelphia again made the best showing of all the teams by winning four out of five games. The Boston Red Sox, who took fifth place with three victories and four defeats, and the Chicago White Sox, who dropped five out of seven to finish in a tie with the St. Louis Browns for last place, also were mathematically eliminated.

Travelers Lead Southern for Week.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Travelers of Little Rock outplayed their competition in the Southern baseball association last week.

The Birmingham Barons outplayed the Memphis Chicks, yet the Chicks outscored the league and outhit the Barons.

Such is the strange revelation of statistics. Little Rock played .714 baseball, winning five out of seven to set the pace in the league. Birmingham and Chattanooga tied for second game-winning honors with five victories and three defeats each. Memphis won five and lost four for third place.

The Chicks set the pace in scoring with 59 tallies in nine games. Little Rock was second with 43 scores in seven games. New Orleans was third with 41 in eight contests.

Atlanta made 20 errors, Nashville and Chattanooga 13 each, while Memphis made 9 and Knoxville 8.

Fire Insurance FACTS
"Hotter 'n Blazes"
—By Wood Burns—

Well, gentle reader . . . or maybe you happen to be one o' them tough guys like what they show in the movies . . . anyway, whether you're tough or tender, do you have any idea how much the fire losses amount to every year in these United States o' ourn?

I doubt if you could guess in a thousand years . . . and jest 'cause you ain't never had no fire o' your own don't mean they ain't plenty heavy!

Now turn your good ear to this: The fire losses every year in the U. S. A. amount to nearly $5.00 for each man, woman and child—the staggering sum of something like $500,000,000 . . . and I ain't jest puting down big figures to make this piece in the paper sound important—it's ever' bit true!

Don't get scared, now . . . act sensible, and call a member agent and talk your insurance needs over with him.

And remember—"Value in insurance lies in the integrity and knowledge of your agent."

Yours, W. B

PREP GRIDDERS GO INTO ACTION IN COMING WEEK

Tech High, G. M. A. Report Tuesday; Boys' High at Work.

By Roy White.

Two of Atlanta's major prep football teams will start their annual grind Tuesday morning when the Tech High and G. M. A. candidates will be called together. Boys' High began its work a week ago at Magness' fishing camp at Lake Burton.

Tech High candidates have been requested to report to Coach Gabe Tolbert at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at Henry Grady field, while the G. M. A. gridmen will report to the annual Cadet summer camp at Hendersonville, N. C.

After a week of exercising in the mountains of north Georgia, reports indicate much progress in the Boys' High camp. They have been going through a regular athletic schedule each day, with the football practice closing the afternoon's program.

NO HEAVY WORK.

There has been no heavy work done. A general conditioning of the players has been stressed throughout the week. Lengthy signal drills have been held each afternoon and considerable fundamental work in punting, passing, blocking and running interference for the ball carriers has been accomplished.

Although a definite plan has not been announced, Coach Tolbert intends to hold three or four light drills each week before school starts early in September and then settle down to some hard scrimmaging.

Tech High has one of its hardest schedules for the coming year and four champions appear on the card of 10 games. There is not a rest period or soft spot on the program, starting with Spartanburg September 26 at Spiller field and ending with G. M. A., November 26.

Others on the schedule include Gordon, Riverside, Erie Academy, Knoxville, Charlotte, Benedictine, Boys' High, and Lanier High.

G. M. A. SCHEDULE.

The G. M. A. schedule likewise is not an easy one, although the Cadets play only eight games. They open with Notre Dame or Chattanooga or Griffin on September 25. Others are Columbus Industrial, McCallie, Boys' High, Navy Plebes, Spartanburg, Lanier and Tech High.

Boys' High will have a tough road to travel before reaching any championship circle. Their way will be obstructed by Madison Aggies, Savannah, Darlington, G. M. A., Etowah, Lanier, Tech High, Columbus and Sidney Lanier, of Montgomery.

Those players slated to report at the G. M. A. camp Tuesday are: Peterson, Pendleton, Allen, Vaughn, Edison, Massengale McMillan, Burtz, C. Boulware, Brine, Cauthorn, Chapman, Conklin, Finch, Hoffberger, Kane, Keever, Paget, Ritch, Riddle, Rose, Silva, Walker, Whiddon and Wood.

Captains M. C. Paget and C. M. McQuarrie will be in charge of the camp and will be assisted by J. S. Burbage and M. C. Bishop.

Billy Alger Here For Sept. 4 Bout

Billy Alger, the Cherokee Indian who meets Sammy Crosby, the Georgia Terror, in the main event at the auditorium September 4, arrived in Atlanta Sunday and held the first of a series of workouts. He appears to be in great shape for his battle with the Georgia sensation.

Sam Crosby fights in Birmingham tonight against Clyde Hull and will come to Atlanta later in the week. Alger cancelled a fight in Philadelphia to meet Crosby here. He figures a victory over Crosby will put him high up in his division.

Both boys are coming along rapidly in their class and should put on one of the best scraps seen here in some time. The complete card will be announced this week. Popular prices will prevail.

PAT O'SHOCKER DOES NOT FEAR MILO'S POWER

Jones Meets Zarnas and O'Shocker Tackles Steinborn Tuesday Night.

Pat O'Shocker, who is wrestling Milo Steinborn at Spiller field Tuesday night in one of the two all-star matches, is not worried about Steinborn's strength.

Nor does O'Shocker plan to stay away until Milo is tired out. He plans to go right in there and see what makes Milo tick.

"Sure Steinborn is strong," said O'Shocker, when here for his last match, "but if I meet him I will go right in. I think I can break that bear hug hold. It is a good one but a man quick enough should be able to get out of it. I'm not worried.

"Another thing about Steinborn. I'd like to see if he can't be pinned right away. I hear that a lot of the boys pull around on his legs and get tossed back because he is so strong. Well, there are other ways. I am looking forward to a meeting with Milo."

The red-headed O'Shocker, the Iirishman from Utah, made a great hit with fans here two weeks ago in his match with Charley Fox, the Cleveland grappler. His presence on the card means a scramble for seats.

Paul Jones, another favorite, is on the same card in a two-hour match. Both O'Shocker and Jones demanded the full limit bouts.

Jones who cuts down his foes with a hook scissors, is to meet Jack Zarnas, an Ohio grappler who has been beating the tough ones up there.

The two headline matches will go on at the usual prices. Ticket are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters and at the Candler Building Soda Company.

Endurance Swim Will Be Held Here

A combination endurance and marathon swim will be held at Spiller's swimming pool Thursday, September 3, it was announced Sunday. The swim will start at 6 o'clock Thursday morning and continue through the afternoon and night if possible.

A cup will be given to the winner and prizes will be given for the greatest distance covered during the swim, to both the men and women swimmers.

The men must cover an average of one mile per hour, while the women must swim one mile every hour and 15 minutes. Registrations are being received by I. L. Greenberg at Jackson 8938 before 3 p. m. and at Main 0289 after 6:30 p. m.

Among the early entries are "Greenie" Greenberg, Owen Conrad, Allen Alexander, "Red" Harbort and W. H. Cook for the men's prize, and Helen Roth and Lil Howle for the women.

U. S. SKILLED WORKERS RECRUITED BY SOVIET

6,000 Needed To Fill Jobs Before the End of the Year.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—From the coal mines, the steel mills, the machine shops, and from the rank and file of American skilled labor, the soviet union is recruitng 6,000 workers to fill jobs in Russia before the end of this year.

The Amtorg Trading Company announced today that 2,000 persons already have been hired to fill new jobs created by the "rapid development of the five-year plan." More than 100,000 applications have been received from workers all over the United States, Amtorg officials said, but all except the remaining 4,000 needed to fill the quota must be rejected.

The 6,000 will supplement about 2,500 American workers, many of whom went to Russia as tourists.

Amtorg officials described the movement of American-trained workers into the soviet union as "organized immigration." They pointed out that every worker leaves the United States with the guarantee of a job and a place to live.

"In practically all cases," the announcement said, "the American workers going over on these contracts are paying their own passage, and in many cases taking their own tools, which are admitted free of duty."

It was explained the workers are going under one and two-year contracts, but many of them, officials said, are taking their families with the intention of settling there permanently.

While there are a number of American-born among them, most of the emigrants came here from Europe 5, 10 or years ago.

They include miners, machinists, carpenters, bricklayers, railroad workers, tractor and automobile repairmen.

FIVE MEN ARRESTED IN KIDNAPING CASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(UP)—Rose Cury, 15, said to be the granddaughter of an Assyrian sheik, has been kidnaped and is being held for ransom, police reported tonight.

Five men, who allegedly called to collect $300 ransom, are being held. They are Joseph Sancino, John Hazen, John Stanzione, Peter Paloscio and Julius Tabi.

Rose has not reappeared and the men profess to have no knowledge of her whereabouts. Detectives said they had a clue that caused them to extend their search to Portage, Pa.

HOLMES INSTITUTE READY FOR NEW TERM

Preparations are being made for the opening of the Holmes Institute on the first Monday in September. The largest number of applications to enter all the departments have been received from all sections of the city and state, according to a statement by Rev. B. R. Holmes, president, Sunday.

The institute is prepared to accommodate the largest number of students in its history. Students will be boarded from 6 years up.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 73

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The Horibs came closer, halted their hideous mounts and faced Tarzan and The Red Flower of Zoram. Now for the first time the ape-man had a good view of these awesome creatures of the inner world. Tarzan had seen many strange creations of Mother Nature. "But these," he thought, "are more evil and repellent than anything I could have imagined." They had three-toed feet and five-fingered hands, which with two short horns and pointed ears gave them a grotesque look.

They sat silently upon their mounts with their toes locked behind the elbows of the Gorobors, some of which measured ten feet long, inspecting Jana and himself with their beady, lidless eyes. He was astounded by their uncouth appearance, but that emotion was as nothing to the shock he was about to receive. For the leading Horib suddenly spoke, addressing Tarzan in the common language of the gilaks of Pellucidar. "You cannot escape," it said, "lay down your weapons."

Meanwhile, Jason Gridley and the man from Zoram slowly wedged their way through the swampland, seeking the village of the Phelians. Here, they believed, The Red Flower of Zoram was held captive. At last they reached a curious huddle of dwellings which the American's companion said must be the houses of the low country hairy men. No one was in sight. The silence was uncanny, but it did not deceive Thoar who believed that many eyes peered at them from hidden places.

"Well," exclaimed Gridley, "what next?" Thoar looked longingly at the American's revolvers. "With one of those things that spit fire, we might soon find Jana," he said. "Come on then," answered Jason, "I would sacrifice more than my ammunition to find The Red Flower of Zoram!" The two started on a run toward the nearest dwelling. Neither man saw the many cruel eyes that watched them from behind near-by trees, nor heard the orders a thick-whiskered fellow gave his followers.

A RECEPTION by the Advertising Club of New York to Russell Boardman and John Polando, whose hop from Newfoundland to Istabul, Turkey, stands as the longest nonstop flight in the history of aviation, will be broadcast over the Columbia network and through WGST from 11:15 a. m. until noon today.

Boardman and Polando took off at 6 a. m. on July 28, and landed in Turkey 49 hours and 20 minutes later, having covered approximately 4,986 miles. This bettered by 74 miles the former record held by the French fliers, Coste and Bellonte, made on a nonstop flight from Paris to Manchuria.

The broadcast on Monday will originate in the main dining room of the Advertising club, at 23 Park avenue, where the fliers will be escorted shortly after their arrival here on a ship from Marseilles. A reception by the city of New York will precede the luncheon.

An address by Vice President Charles G. Curtis on the opening night of the 43rd international convention of the Loyal Order of Moose, at Atlantic City, N. J., will be broadcast over Columbia from 7:45 to 8 o'clock tonight. The vice president, who will talk on "Child Welfare," will be introduced to the radio audience by United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, who for many years has been a leader in the affairs of the Moose. The talk will be picked up from the auditorium of the Atlantic City convention hall and will be relayed to the nation-wide network by DRAMATIC and intimate sketches, meeting with increased favor among fans, bring new and old voices to National Broadcasting Company programs during the day.

One of those intriguing Death Valley days, "A Death Valley Night Club," gets its curtain call at 6:30 p. m. over an NBC-WJZ circuit.

The "Thompkins Corner Barbecue" is another rural sketch created by George Frame Brown, which may be heard from 7:30 p. m. over the same network.

Paul Dumont, NBC songster, producer and announcer, brings back the good old days of "down south" minstrelsy, end men, chorus and all, with "Mr. Bones and Company" at 8:30 on the WJZ hookup from coast-to-coast. The Stebbins Boys, portrayed by Phil Lord and Arthur Allen, continue to gossip around their country store on the Maine seacoast. It's heard on the WEAF network.

LEO CARRILLO STAR OF GANGSTER FILM

"Hell Bound" is playing at the Capitol theater this week. Are you fond of puzzles? Here's one. An Italian gangster shoots a man, and the only evidence against him is lodged in the potential testimony of a cabaret singer whom he has befriended. Albeit she is in love with a doctor, the which is carefully explained in the picture, she is under a deep obligation to the gangster, who, it appears, has a heart of gold withal. So the gangster's lawyer unfolds the smart idea of having the songbird marry the shotgun on the principal that as his wife, she would be absolved from giving evidence at the trial. So they called it "Hell Bound." Why? Answer next week . . . watch this column.

As a matter of fact, the picture is very entertaining, by virtue of a new trick. Leo Carrillo plays the part of the gangster, and he has an Italian bootblack jargon which is a new and improved departure from the usual "Slip dis mug de woiks, Cholley!" Lola Lane, who plays the part of the softening influence, has very little to do, except keep her face straight while Carrillo does his patois. And Lloyd Hughes, as the doctor, is called upon merely to look truculent and adoring by turns. The picture is really Carrillo's, and he does very well with it. The plot is just something to plant some more surplus cotton in.

There is a corking ending, not exactly new, perhaps, but in this instance quite well worked out.

The rest of the bill is good. Oswald, the rambling rabbit, in an animated cartoon, is as funny as such things always are. There is a short comedy on the Punch and Judy type, wherein a reporter scoops his own paper. Clip this out and keep it with you, because the ending comes so suddenly, you might miss the scoop entirely. And there is another comedy, a Christie, I believe, in which not one single pie is thrown. And there is another comedy in which shoes are thrown. But the next time we are called upon to see a gang picture, we are not going to be so nice about it.

—JOHN ULLMAN.

JOAN CRAWFORD IS STAR AT FOX

Joan Crawford is amusingly out of place in her latest vehicle "Laughing Sinners," holding forth this week at the Fox theater. It is the story of a despondent cabaret girl who finds salvation according to the most classical version—in the Salvation Army. Her rescued soul gets loose into delicious sin, and just as you think the play is really about to begin, Joan's soul is again saved and the play ends.

Devotees of Joan Crawford will lose none of their devotion because of "Laughing Sinners." After all, a little soul salvation now and then does even the most entertaining sinners no harm. And beyond a shadow of doubt, as well as those of the silver sheet, Joan's projection frolicking over the screen is always entertaining.

Besides Joan, the character actors of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer outfit, of whom a goodly variety of the best appears in "Laughing Sinners," make the film acceptable. For male leads, Joan is supported by Neil Hamilton and Clark Gable. Gable being Joan's companion in arms when in the Salvation Army and Joan being Hamilton's companion in arms for the sinning episodes.

For beautiful scenic settings, the Fox stage show this week is one well worth seeing, while the principal and Sunkist peaches of the chorus offer a program in keeping with the usual excellence of Fox stage presentations.

The Fanchon & Marco brain-child for this week is "Submarine" idea. It is novel, entertaining, spectacular and even exciting. Enrico Leide's overture and Al Evans' followers who pay the theater to sing contribute becomingly to this portion of the program.

While on the screen, aiding and abetting "Laughing Sinners" in enticing the audience are two good comedies and the thrilling eleventh episode in the Bobby Jones serial, "Practice Shots," not a gangster picture.

INTERESTING BILL SHOWN AT GEORGIA

Once a cinema star—gets a reputation for being particularly effective in a certain role, the doting public may make up its mind that it will be given that particular star in that particular role ad infinitum ad nauseum. "Bought," showing this week at the Keith's Georgia, is starring Constance Bennett, so now you know the plot. There's always irksome poverty, then glittering riches and eventually contented security. It must be admitted that she does such things well. It is only that she does them so often.

Ben Lyon nearly steals the show. Lyon, as you lucky persons who have so much time to attend these shows are well aware, is good because he's real. He doesn't pose or flourish or cut loose with a gesture. He merely lights himself a cigaret, sticks it in his face and smiles, just as you'd do, or you, or even you. And because he's easy and natural and smooth, he's a good actor. In "Bought" he is quite up to standard and in our opinion makes the picture.

The stage show is above the average. It moves quickly and entertainingly and is replete with good dancing. Jack Sidney's dancers are a little different from the run-of-the-mine type of vaudeville stuff and the acrobatic dancer, whom he declares he just obtained in New Orleans, is unusually clever. Venita Gould does impressions of famous stars, and does them well. Her act would be more enjoyable if some of us had seen the originals for comparison purposes. But way down here in Atlanta, that possibility seems to be rather remote, so we must be thankful for the Goulds of this world. All in all, it is an entertaining bill at the Georgia this week.

IDAHO FIRE FIGHTERS SAVE THREE VILLAGES

Red Cross and Salvation Army Workers Afford Relief for Refugees.

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Fire fighters today succeeded in turning forest fires aside at Pioneerville, the Golden Age Mine, and Grimes Pass, all of which settlements were threatened with destruction.

Huge flames still were gaining headway tonight in the vicinity of Grimes Pass, but little fear was felt that the village would meet a fate similar to that of Quartzburg and Granite Creek, already razed.

Placerville residents, most of whom had spent two days in the open sand flat outide the city, returned to their home this afternoon, carrying belongings that had been stacked in heaps out in the sand.

Smoke blotted out a complete picture of the flames which were burning on many fronts out from Placerville, covering virtually the entire upper reaches of the Boise Basin and spreading far over into the Payette Basin.

Red Cross and Salvation Army workers continued to serve the wants of the several hundred refugees, but the demands decreased slightly with the two score Placerville families returned to their homes.

Warmer Weather Will Arrive Today

A return to normal late-summer temperatures was indicated for Atlanta and vicinity today and tonight by the United States weather bureau outlook for the first of this week. Subnormal temperatures which have prevailed over this part of the southeast for the last week will be dissipated by clear, sunny weather, with no immediate prospect of rain, it was forecast.

Weather conditions Sunday approached the ideal Indian summer variety, with smiling skies and sufficient cooling breezes to keep the day from being too warm.

CHICAGO 'BOOKIE' HELD FOR RANSOM OF $250,000

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Friends of John J. "Jack" Lynch, pioneer Chicago handbook operator and heavy stockholder in the Arlington Park race track, disclosed tonight that he had been missing since last Thursday and that ransom demands for $250,000 had been made by men who supposedly had abducted him.
